NUNGESSER AND COLI MAY BE STRANDED

FLARES SEEN SUNDAY NIGHT NEAR ST. GERMAINE, QUEBEC

In Mountains Where Redman Is Only Native—Four Reports That They Saw Indian Signals, Which Is Always Fire—Strengthening Hope That the French Air Heroes Survive.

Charles Nungesser and Francis Coli, missing French aviators, are believed to be stranded in the north of the province of Quebec, a number of miles northwest of St. Germain township, on the north side of the Saguenay river.

A message received at parliament building from forest workers there states that signals of distress were seen in the mountains for a half hour Sunday night and, as they were proper flares, lighted at intervals of three minutes, it is expected that further inquiry will reveal they were lit by Nungesser and Coli, who left Paris a month ago last Sunday.

The signals were in a northwesterly direction, 70 degrees northwest of St. Germain.

They were seen by four men employed on forest work and, as it is strange to see such flares in this district, they reported the matter to the Provincial government.

On rare occasions previously there have been distress signals from Indians, but they always have been fire signals, not the flares which were seen Sunday night.

Organized parties of forest workers of the Saguenay district, numbering several hundred, are going up to the St. Germain region, it was learned from the parliament building.

No further news have been received from the district, but the government anxious to leave no stone unturned in the possibility of the flares being signals from Nungesser and Coli, have sent wires to all forestry stations instructing the formation of organized parties to go into the St. Germain township and the mountains where the flares were seen.

Despite the fact that Paris reports the airmen left their flares behind them, authorities at Quebec are optimistic, so strange is the sight of flares in this region. The witnesses all are reliable forest officials.

With organized parties on the job the government hopes that it will not be long before the suspense is ended and it is known whether or not the famous French airmen are stranded in the wilds of Quebec. News is expected late Wednesday night or early Wednesday morning.

According to word received Tuesday from Toronto Captain F. V. Robinson, one of the Canadian aviators who has just returned from a search for Nungesser and Coli, declared he had encountered Indians who professed to have heard an airplane about the time the two French aces disappeared.

RECEIVED DEGREE.

Miss F. Marguerite Barnhill, of 715 North Court street, received her bachelor of arts degree when she was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university at the annual commencement exercises held in Delaware Tuesday.

Dr. Edwin G. Conklin, head of the department of biology, Princeton university, delivered the commencement address.

Biblical Appellation

Hexateuch is the name applied to the first six books of the Bible, that is, to the Pentateuch together with the Book of Joshua; the latter dealing as it does with the conquest of Canaan, logically belongs to the same section as the other five. Pentateuch is from two Greek words meaning five and book. Hexateuch means six and book.

Charles Nungesser and Francis Coli started from LeBourget flying field near Paris early Sunday morning, May 8, for New York in an attempt to be the first to make a non-stop flight between Paris and the American metropolis.

They were reported to have been sighted over the English Channel and off the Irish coast, but after several persons had stated that the roar of a plane was heard over points in Newfoundland the morning of May 9, there has been no authentic instance of its having been sighted on this side of the ocean.

The possibility that Nungesser and Coli had flown into Canada was one of the outstanding facts of their disappearance. United States hydrographers estimated that they might have been carried into Labrador, whence even yet it normally would not be time for them to reach communication by telegraph or wireless.

MEETS DEATH THROWN THRU WINDSHIELD

Mrs. Anna C. Sawyers, Mrs. S. B. Orr's Sister, Killed Instantly at Cleveland.

Mrs. S. B. Orr was called to Cleveland by the untimely death of her sister, Mrs. Anna C. Sawyers.

Mrs. Sawyers was riding Monday evening with her daughter and son-in-law when a truck hit their car and Mrs. Sawyer was thrown out onto the paved street. She died shortly afterward.

The car, driven by her son-in-law, Herman Hamilton, was going west on Cedar street and at East 32d street, according to police, the rear wheels tangled with a truck, whirling the sedan and throwing Mrs. Sawyer to the pavement. Her death brought this year's traffic toll in Cleveland to eighty. On June 13 last year only seventy lives had been claimed.

The remains were taken to Pittsburgh for burial.

QUESTION OF THE LIBRARY NOT SETTLED

Delegations Call on Governor Donahey in an Effort to Save Institution.

Representatives of more than a dozen state-wide organizations were to meet with Governor A. V. Donahey, Tuesday afternoon, to protest against the closing of the state library July 1.

Such a resolution was adopted Tuesday noon at the Neil House, Columbus, where Mrs. Josephine L. Peirce, Lima, president of the State Federation of Women's clubs, acted as secretary of the meeting.

Future action of the committee, which has the maintaining of the library as its object, will be governed by the outcome of the conference with the governor, Mrs. Peirce said.

Possibility that individual members of the legislature will be importuned to convene in special session if the conference fails of other aid was held out by those attending the conference.

In event this fails, the committee plans, as a last resource, calling for popular subscriptions to support the library. Another plan calls for a special appropriation by the emergency board, which will be visited, it was intimated, if Governor Donahey refuses to listen to the request of the committee, Tuesday afternoon.

Organizations represented at the meeting, Tuesday, which was styled "The State Committee for the Preservation of the State Library," included the League of Women Voters, Farm Women's clubs, Parent-Teachers association, Ohio State Grange, Ohio Farm bureau, State Federation of Labor, Ohio Council of Churches, Ohio Manufacturers association and others.

SECURES BIG CONTRACT.

J. M. Bernhart, of Canton, who has been a resident with his family in this city since last winter has secured a big road contract in Wayne county.

Mr. Bernhart was a subcontractor for the Dominion company and The Sturm & Dillard company, contractors of the Chesapeake and Hocking railroad doing grading work. He will ship all his machinery to Wooster this week where he has secured a contract to build 4½ miles of road on the Marshville-Eastern road. It will be built of slag and will be water-bound. Mr. Bernhart obtains the slag from Canton. He says it makes an excellent road and is not costly, about $10,000 a mile.

THE GOVERNOR SEEKS A REST INDIAN LAKE

Island Will Be Mecca For Many of Our People For Next Few Months.

People who seek conferences with Governor Donahey during the next few months will probably be obliged to go to his island in Indian Lake, near Bellefontaine, for the gratification of the desire.

The governor, together with Adjutant General Henderson, is the owner of a beautiful island in the lake. A commodious cottage has been erected there and the governor purposes to make it his summer home, except for a day or two a week, when he will come to his office in Columbus.

It is his intention to entertain largely at the island during the summer months and many of the leading men, mostly men prominent in the Democratic party, will be his guests. They will come from all parts of the country in order that conferences in the quiet the island affords can be held.

Out of these conferences will probably be determined the future political course the governor is to pursue. It will be decided whether he is to be a candidate for a fourth term, in his present office; whether he will try for the presidential nomination or seek the nomination for United States senator, as an opponent of Senator Simeon D. Fess. If the opinion of leading Democrats counts for anything the latter office is the one for which he will announce himself. It is known this has the greatest appeal and the place for which he has the most intense longing.

The belief is prevalent that his candidacy for this office is growing and ultimately he will announce his purpose to seek the nomination.

Governor's Island will become a place much in the eyes of the people during the next few months.

Another reason which has induced the chief executive to seek rest during the summer is the intense strain under which he has been working since the commencement of the legislative session. He has been advised that relief is necessary and the island affords the easiest and most practical way this can be secured.

Many of the governor's personal friends will also be entertained and a number of days will be set apart for this.

CIRCLEVILLE EAGLES

Won a Pretty Game of Ball At Plain City Sunday Afternoon By a 5 To 2 Score.

We believe that George Kanaval's jinx has been broken at last. George pitched his usual high class ball at Plain City Sunday and supported by gilt edged work in the field and some timely hitting got away with a 5 to 2 verdict over Bob Rapp's fence busters.

Circleville looked more like a ball team Sunday than at any time this season. They were full of pep and fight for the entire nine innings, and staged a batting rally in the fifth inning that put the game on ice.

To tell the best of our story first we will recount the happenings of that fifth frame. After O. Miller, the first man up, had been retired, Altfater came through with a hit and Pitcher Kanaval followed with a screaming liner to center. Stewart followed with another hit and Harvey Miller hit a long fly to left which Jackson took after a hard run. McLaughlin hit a sizzler through Miller at third base, Kindler was given a pass and Terry delivered a nice double; Thompson was retired by Neer unassisted, for the final out, but four runs had been registered.

Outside of that one bad inning Savage pitched a good steady game, the other Circleville run, in the fourth, being the result of an error by Jackson on Kindler's hit and a wild throw by Horning attempting to cut off the fleet footed Terry.

The Plain City runs came in the sixth, the result of Kanaval's only bases on balls. He walked Savage and Rapp in succession and then Neer and Albanese followed with hits, the only time the home team secured more than one hit in an inning. A nice throw by Altfater cut Neer off at the plate on Mike's hit and two flies to right ended the inning.

Taken all in all it was a very pretty contest and deserved a much better crowd than turned out to see it.

On next Sunday the Birds will make their second visit to Reynoldsburg and attempt to even up the score for the three to nothing defeat suffered earlier in the season.

ELECTRICITY AID TO DURATION OF LIFE

Every child born today has the prospect of living five-sixteenths of a year longer than if born in 1911, according to figures recently compiled. Undoubtedly this remarkable result has been brought about by better living conditions, thorough modern science and education. Despite the intense speed of Twentieth century life, with its tension and dangers to the nervous system, life is easier than ever before in the history of the world, and the natural result is longer life.

That electricity has played an important part in bringing this about is unquestioned. It has made industrial working conditions immeasurably better by supplying good light, by making ventilation easier and more effective, by providing a simple form of power. It has revolutionized domestic labor, with its elimination of tedious, nerve-racking, back-breaking tasks through the medium of the modern electric appliance.

TRY US FOR A WANT AD

Vertical Line Is Feature of Coats

Straight From Shoulders to Hemline the Fashion Followed in Paris.

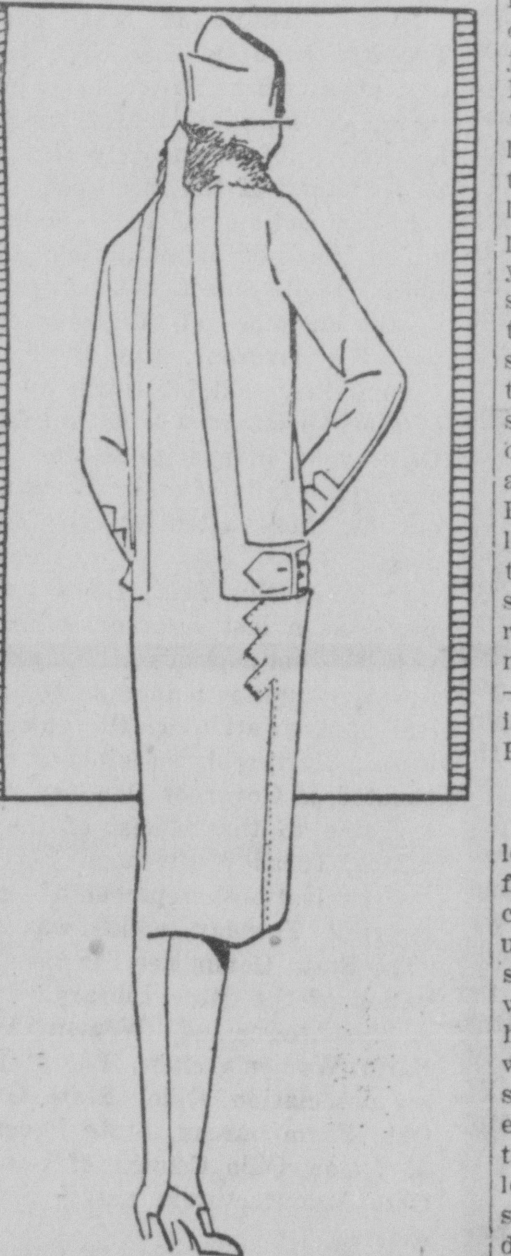

Exploiting a silhouette that is slim, straight and not vitally different from that of last season, the new spring coat is essentially dependent on new details for its differentiations. The straight coat silhouette can scarcely be called new, but whereas last year many models correctly chose the devious path of the flare, this year the chic version must be uninterruptedly vertical—straight from the shoulders to the hemline. There is no more positive rule in the new fashion than that the straightline coat must prevail, asserts a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Perhaps the smartest type of Paris spring coat is the one that is somewhat misleadingly known as collarless. Strictly speaking, there is no collar on these new versions. In its place, however, there are substituted such graceful details as the bow, the draping tie and the scarf which convey the same effect. Generally the sleeves which appear on these collarless models are close fitting, while the smartest spring coat length is seven-eighths, permitting about two or three inches of the frock to peer beneath the hemline.

The seven-eighths type of coat is outstanding in the afternoon mode, and is represented always as part of the ensemble, for its very use is to give an illusory idea that the coat is long, inasmuch as its frill, ruffle or fold at the bottom repeats one on the frock skirt, as Premet, for example, does it. Lanvin makes a striking coat in shantung, piped with black, which flares ever so faintly from the waistline and fastens with a single button. Strangely enough, the manner in which a coat fastens is quite as significant as any other detail and often illustrates a house characteristic. Molyneux, for instance, makes most of his coats full length and does not arrange a fastening, but builds them so that they may be held by the wearer.

Slim Belts Are Used.

Slim belts are used by many houses and Cheruit opens the black silk afternoon coat quite wide with this belt closing, which gives it the appearance of being pushed back to expose the light-colored frock worn with it. Lelong's kinkoptic line is exemplified, of course, in coats, and in media, such as georgettes especially, he places radiating tucks around the shoulders and extends them to the rather shallow up-standing collar. Chanel's thickly plaited afternoon coat in printed chiffon, with a frock in the same fabric, is responsive to the new chic. Lace coats are again features for races, and both satin and georgette crepes have taken a tremendous hold in the immediate fashions.

In considering coats do not forget that the short jacket is vastly important in the recent creations, and it is often inclined to usurp the place of the long coat. Usually this brief coat becomes so much a part of the frock that it is difficult to consider it apart. This is illustrated by models from Molyneux which sometimes have the short jacket in the figured print of the frock.

Travel coats on the whole are built on loose, easy lines in a double-faced English material in which the plaid side is the lining, collar and cuffs. Roll collars that fairly ripple are important for this type of coat, while some others have no collar at all and show revers only. The princess silhouette is one of the variations of the travel or morning coat, with the double breast fastened by six buttons, as Chantal does it. Drop shoulders are characteristic of travel coats and express the easy line. Bright leather coats in three-quarter length are developed further for motoring and for sports, while the snakeskin coat, such as Martiat et Armand shows, is important, and the short jacket with close fur collar in decolorized lizard or water snake from Bechoff—both have great interest.

The raincoat is always an important item in the list of summer coats. The majority are made in Bianchini's frame—which is waterproof—in bright colors and changeable tones, such as those already seen in Paris in changeable red and green and in old blue and bright red. Plaids, which tell so much of the new styles, take a big share in the raincoat mode and follow the double-breasted mode.

Dolman Type for Evening.

Evening coats, on the whole, have not undergone any radical change but remain true to the dolman type. Patou shows his dalmatique lined with fur and Louise Boulanger emphasizes the cape drawn up snugly about the hips. Often she lifts the front of a three-quarters length coat and dips it in the back and makes shortish sleeves—typical are those which are crushed in an electric-blue velvet model.

Summarizing the spring and summer coat situation, these facts stand out: First, it decidedly will not do to essay your last year's coat for this season. Even if your frock, shoes and hat were indubitably au fait a wrap of last spring's vintage would add a jarring and definitely demodee note. Nor can you, unless you be one of those nimble-fingered ladies who laugh at tailoring problems, revamp the year-old wrap so that it may at least faintly resemble the contemporary models. Forget the flare—let your new coat be uninterruptedly straight and have it mold the figure to a moderate degree. The length should be seven-eighths—long enough to reveal a bit of the frock. Your sleeves can be wide or narrow, ornate or simple, but you will be safest in adopting the narrow simple type. Finally, but not least, forego the collar which has been an intrinsic item these recent years. Use instead a scarf or a bow. As for color and fabric, you may wander the realms of the mode fancy free. With this adjuration—for the moment the black silk coat is the contemporary shrine where all Paris is paying homage.

The Tailleur and Ensemble.

As between the fully revived tailleur and the perennial ensemble, the frugal lady should unhesitatingly choose the latter unless she be of an unqualifiedly tailored type. This may strike you as curious reasoning in view of the fact that the tailored suit has just been accorded the hearty welcome of the prodigal, while the ensemble no longer has even the faintest ring of novelty. But we have not too much faith in this new Paris tailleur. Granting that it has a mannish smartness which should encase it to debutante and post-debutante hearts, it lacks the limning characteristic which has become so essential these frank, unblushing days. And viewed from the standpoint of those who are advocating gentler and more girlish dress, it is too severely masculine.

The ensemble, on the other hand, covers a multitude of modes. It may be severely masculine—or it may be gracefully feminine. It may be interpreted in the ancient theme of coat lining matching frock or it may appear in any one of a half dozen new versions. It is smart in the morning and quite as smart in the afternoon. In another form it becomes part of the romantic landscape of summer nights. It is inescapably an integral part of the mode, and it will still be an essential factor next year. Which is all that even the thriftiest Cernol-selle could ask.

Coat Materials

Transparent velvet has become a favorite material for outer garments. The coats are in delicate shades of cream, corn, pink and mother of pearl and are usually trimmed with extremely narrow bands of expensive fur.

Goethe's Art Collection Found in Old Trunk

Berlin.—Goethe's remarkable collection of his own 88 black and white drawings and water colors, which the Goethe museum at Weimar sought throughout Germany for 25 years, is now in the museum as a result of a curious coincidence.

The drawings, largely German and Bohemian landscapes, were known to have been presented by Goethe in 1807 to Princess Caroline of Saxe-Weimar with a note reading: "This is how I whiled away my leisure moments during my travels of recent years."

The princess willed the collection to her intimate friend, Christiane von Reitzenstein. Her descendants evidently thought as little of the drawing as did Germany's greatest poet, who virtually apologized for dabbling in such foolishness.

A short time ago a distant relative of the Von Reitzenstein family submitted the drawings to Prof. Hans Wahl, director of the Goethe museum, who had been conducting the search, and asked if they were genuine. He said he found them in an old trunk of family relics, Doctor Wahl immediately recognized his long-sought prize and purchased it.

That's All

The daughter of the house had taken delight in listening to her father dictate the cryptic words of a telegram over the phone. Later that day at the supper table she was making a detailed explanation of something to her mother. Her father asked her, when she had stopped talking, whether she had anything more to say.

"No," she replied, "that's all there is. Period. Stop."

AIRMEN TO MAP HUDSON STRAIT

Canada Flyers and Aids to Explore Channel as Traffic Route.

Toronto, Ont.—Fifty Canadian aviators and geographers will sail from Halifax early in July on a spectacular arctic, or subarctic, piece of exploration, which may easily surpass in dramatic interest and in scientific discoveries of benefit to mankind any polar flight or expedition.

Their destination is Hudson strait, that great ocean channel 500 miles long by 75 miles wide which connects Hudson bay with the Atlantic ocean. On its inhospitable shores, just on the edge of the land of the midnight sun, they will be isolated for 15 months—all through one long arctic winter and two brief summers.

The object of the expedition is to collect data on the navigation problems of Hudson strait, which, of course, will be the ocean outlet of the Hudson Bay railway now under construction from northern Manitoba to Port Nelson, on the west coast of Hudson bay.

Little Known as Traffic Route.
 Though Hudson strait has been navigated off and on for 300 years, very little is known about its potentialities as a regular traffic route. The impression has prevailed that it is safe for traffic during only two or two and a half months each season. During the rest of the year navigators have found it choked with ice.

While the Hudson Bay railway is being built on the assumption that this new traffic route will have only a brief season, there are enthusiasts who maintain its possibilities are immensely greater. They confidently expect a six-months' season and some go so far as to say that the strait, with modern aids to navigation, can be kept open all the year round.

They say it is unreasonable to suppose that a deep salt-water expanse, with heavy currents 75 miles wide at its narrowest point, remains choked with ice during the periods described, and argue that there is probably a natural open channel through the ice all through the year. Spaces are so immense that ships would easily miss the channel, but that does not prove its nonexistence.

This year's aerial expedition will seek to discover the truth about Hudson strait. When an appropriation of $550,000 was asked for the purpose in parliament a week or two ago one critic objected that the only way to test the navigability of Hudson strait was by actually navigating it with ships. But the minister declared that the airplanes would get more useful information in one season than would a fleet of ships in ten years.

Moreover, wireless stations and camps that will be established by the expedition will probably serve as permanent equipment for the successful navigation of the strait.

The assignment, which has been turned over to the royal Canadian air force, is without parallel in the annals of flying. Map students may think of Hudson bay as lying within the limits of civilization or at least on its edge. It is nothing of the sort. The eastern end of it is 1,000 miles northwest of St. John's, N. F., and the main base of the expedition, lying due north of Ottawa, is as far from civilization as Duluth is from New Orleans.

Plan Three Bases.
 The intention is to establish three bases. One of these will be at Port Burwell on the northern tip of Labrador at the entrance to the strait; the second and main base, general headquarters, will be on the north shore at Lake Harbor on Baffin Land, and the third will be at the entrance to Hudson bay at Nottingham island, 500 miles from the first base.

Those not flyers at each station will include one doctor, one mounted policeman and men from the department of marine and fisheries radio branch and from the royal Canadian corps of signalers. At each depot wireless stations will be established so that intercommunication between them will be maintained at all times.

The station at Lake Harbor will be capable of short wave communication with Ottawa so that the capital will be able to keep in touch with the work and lives of the expedition.

In addition, each airplane will be equipped with wireless for communication, both voice and key, with the stations.

DONAHEY URGES VETS TO KEEP UP INSURANCE

Governor, In Radio Talk, Tells Ex-Service Men To Act Quickly With Lapsed Policies.

World war veterans were urged by Governor Donahey to act quickly and reinstate their lapsed war risk insurance before July 2, the dead line for this privilege, last night in a radio address from WAIU.

Reinstatement of lapsed insurance is easy to do, he said. Unless the veteran is permanently and totally disabled he may reinstate and convert his wartime insurance into one of the seven forms of insurance issued by the government.

"The American Legion of Ohio, through its many posts, can supply you with all information, the necessary forms and will give you every assistance in filling them out. The Veterans' Bureaus and the Red Cross chapters are also prepared to assist."

The veteran may pay for his insurance monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually, as he prefers.

 "'Any result?'
 "'Yep. I've given up smoking.'"

NATIONS OF NORTH LEAD IN ATHLETICS

The most athletic countries are those with the lowest average temperature, according to computations made by Dr. Guillermo Hoxmark, of the Argentine weather bureau, on the basis of performances at the last two Olympic games in Antwerp and Paris.

Twenty-six countries were represented and the number of inhabitants of each were divided by the number of points gained, thus giving the number of thousands of inhabitants per point. The countries were then ranged in the resulting order.

When brought into relation with the average annual temperature it appeared that a high average athletic ability and a low average temperature go together.

The figures of the two competitions taken separately and together, give approximately the same result. In each case Norway, Finland and Sweden head the list in the order named, Great Britain stands twelfth; Spain, Czechoslovakia, Japan and Egypt are among those at the bottom of the list.

Men who judge livestock at Ohio county fairs have been invited by the State university to spend two days in Columbus, June 22, and 23, attending a postgraduate course on sheep and dairy cattle judging.

Labor incomes of 12 Henry county farmers last year ranged from $794 to $3368, according to records they completed in cooperation with rural economics at the State university. That difference in labor income resulted mainly from differences in management of the farms, the economists said.

A. C. WILKES
GLORIFIES THE
GOLDEN STATE*Tells Chamber of Commerce
Members of Wonderful
California Climate.

Arthur C. Wilkes, who recently returned from Pasadena, California, where he and Mrs. Wilkes spent the winter, gave the members of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening a most entertaining talk on the wonderful growth of cities in southern California.

Los Angeles, the City of the Angels which in 1860 had 4,385 inhabitants, today has a population estimated at 1,300,000 the fourth largest city in the Union and outranks Detroit by 100,000. In seventeen years it has doubled its population and has over 50,000 colored people alone. California occupies one-half of the Pacific coast line of the United States and is one thousand miles long. The Golden State has no navigable rivers except the lower Sacramento.

It has spent over sixty millions of dollars to improve its roads and has the finest system of roadways in the Union.

The state is second in per capita ownership of motor cars. It produces all the borax mined in this country; its stores of petroleum is very large, producing about the same as Texas and is exceeded only by Oklahoma.

It is a state of romance and history and was acquired from Mexican political control in 1846. Los Angeles is the largest city in area in the United States as it covers 391.6 square miles of territory. Los Angeles county is larger than the state of Rhode Island.

Californians especially pride themselves on the climate, owing to the fact that the atmosphere is so clear. Motion pictures can be taken 350 days in the year the topography and flora are most varied. In has made Hollywood, a suburb of Los Angeles the center of the motion picture industry. There are 48 studios and 4,400 employees earning $12,542,040 and in 1926 had an output valued at $54,332,060.

The total production of all crops in 1926 was valued at $86,000,000. The manmade harbor of San Pedro is one of the world's great shipping points and it is claimed second only to New York City in tonnage.

SPRAY TIME
ARRIVES FOR
LEAFHOPPERS*Pests Are Due To Work On
Potato Plants By the Middle of This Month.

Mid-June to the Ohio potato grower means potato leafhoppers and the only language these insects understand is the language of the power sprayer.

"The main reason for spraying potatoes in Ohio" writes T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the Ohio State university, in a letter to Ohio county agents giving the latest on potato spraying, "is the potato leafhopper, which is responsible for the rolling and dying of the leaf before the plants are mature. This is known as hopperburn.

"Adult leaf-hoppers enter the potato fields early in June in central Ohio counties and by the middle of the month the young or nymphs appear on the undersides of the leaves. They become more numerous as the summer progresses, and have often been known to kill the plants by the middle of August.

"Strong solutions of bordeaux mixture are known to be repellent to the leafhoppers and also have some toxic effects against the young. The nymphs are unable to survive until mature, if forced to feed on leaves kept covered with the mixture. Old hopppers avoid such leaves and are obliged to seek to other food."

Mr. Parks recommends a bardeaux mixture of five pounds of blue vitrol 7 1/2 pounds of hydrated lime and 50 gallons of water, applied to the undersides of the leaves.

Timely Odds

She was a young and pretty girl of a sporting turn of mind. Somehow she heard that a certain horse was to win a certain race, and, deciding to indulge in a little speculation, she went to a "bookie" and put a dollar on for a win, asking at the same time how much she would get if it came off.

"If it starts at 20 to 1 you will get 21 back," said the bookie; "if at 10 to 1, 11 back; if at 5 to 1 you'll get 6 back."

"I see," said the maiden, "and if it starts at one o'clock, how much should I get then?"

TAXATION IS LIVE PROBLEM IN THE STATE

Letters Urge That Budgets of Every Taxing District be Thoroughly Studied.

Letters urging the appointment of committees of farmers to study the budget of every taxing district have been sent to county farm bureaus in every county of Ohio, according to information just received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. These committees were appointed and served in a number of counties last year, says the report.

Farm organizations were the chief sponsors of the balanced budget law now operating in Ohio, according to L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation. These laws were urged so that every taxpayer might have an opportunity to know how his local tax money is spent and to have some voice in its expenditure he says.

The present budget law requires the fiscal officer of every taxing subdivision to offer its proposed budget for public inspection not less than ten days previous to its adoption and to hold at least one public hearing for its consideration, farm bureau leaders say. The budget must be drawn up before July 15. Every taxpayer, under this system, has the opportunity of looking over proposed government expenditures, and presenting his views or suggestions as to how economies can be made in operation of various government units.

Studies made by Federation workers show that committees of this kind have saved the taxpayers considerable money in the past two years. Local government officials are willing to cooperate with groups of taxpayers who show an intelligent interest in public affairs, these studies show, and impartial committees can often aid in correlating various budget items.

From 75 to 90 per cent of tax money goes for local functions, and it is here that the growing burden of taxation must be watched and expenditures trimmed, say tax experts.

WHEN DICKENS "DID" OHIO.

Fifty-seven years ago last Thursday the death of Charles Dickens occurred, which brings to notice that, lacking one year, as many years as those of his life have passed since his death. For Mr. Dickens died at the comparatively early age of 58.

He looked upon Ohio but once. On the occasion of his American tour in 1842 he passed thru the state from Cincinnati to Sandusky, where he took a lake boat for Buffalo. He passed thru Columbus and spent one day and night here. He was the guest of the Neil House while here, not the Neil House of today, nor yet the structure that was razed to make way for this one, but the old Neil house which burned in November, 1860.

It was before the days of railroads here and Mr. Dickens came from Cincinnati to Columbus by regular stage but there being no regular stage to Sandusky the next day, and being desirous of reaching Sandusky as soon as possible, he left Columbus the next morning by special conveyance.

No reference to his presence in the city is contained in any of the newspapers of the time; no reporter called at his hotel to get his views of the United States of our state, as would be the case now. He did not fail to mention Columbus in his American notes published the next year and from this one may judge that he was favorably impressed here.

He wrote: "We reached Columbus shortly after 7 o'clock and stayed there to refresh that day and night, having excellent apartments in a large unfinished hotel called the Neil House, which were richly fitted with the polished wood of the black walnut and opened on a handsome portico and stone veranda like rooms in some Italian mansion. The town is clean and pretty and of course is going to be much larger. It is the seat of the state legislature of Ohio and lays claim in consequence to some consideration and importance."—J. H. Galbreath.

WHERE PAGAN KINGS ONCE RULED SWEDEN

Old Upsala Again Comes Into Spotlight.

Washington.—"Old Upsala, one-time pagan capital of Sweden, recently came into the spotlight, after centuries of slumber, when a Christian church which is more than 800 years old, was rededicated," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The church stands on the same site formerly occupied by the famous golden pagan temple of Upsala, where worship of the Norse gods, Odin, Thor and Frey, drenched the 'sacred' building with the blood of human sacrifice.

Pagan Rites Practiced.

"Tradition has it that King Domald was slain at Upsala as a sacrifice to the pagan gods to end a famine, after the people had offered other human beings and an ox without success," continues the bulletin.

"King Aun, another early Swedish king, was promised additional years of life by the gods if he would offer up his sons. He lived to sacrifice nine, but was stopped by his subjects before he attempted to slay the tenth and last. The old king is said to have died shortly after he failed to comply with the gods' commands.

"Visitors to Old Upsala today who are not familiar with its history, would not be apprised of its ancient glory. Except for three huge mounds, the traditional tombs of the three gods, and a natural amphitheater where the ancient assemblies of Sweden were held, few suggestions of the old capital remain.

"Ostra Aros, two miles south of the capital on the Fyris river, was the royal landing place. Otherwise it was insignificant compared with the royal town. But when the first Christian cathedral was destroyed by fire in the Thirteenth century, the archbishopric was moved to the port city, and shortly afterward the royal household migrated to Stockholm. Old Upsala was soon deserted when stripped of its royal and religious leadership and Ostra Aros even usurped its name. The old capital later became known as Gamla Upsala.

"Modern Upsala, now a city of nearly 30,000 inhabitants, is about forty miles north of Stockholm with which it is connected by both water and rail transportation. Its principal industry is education, for Upsala university is the largest state educational institution in Sweden. The university was founded in 1477.

"Crowning the highest point in the city is the Upsala castle, founded by King Gustavus Vasa 400 years ago. It was the scene of Queen Christina's abdication.

"The castle windows afford a splendid view of the 'college town.' The Fyris, crossed by eight bridges, quietly flows southward toward Lake Malaren. The city is spread out on both banks. The east bank, save for a few houses, and streets that are laid out in checkerboard fashion, is the site of numerous university buildings, campuses and gardens. One of the gardens was laid out by Linnaeus, the founder of modern botany, who became a professor at Upsala in 1741. Emanuel Swedenborg, mystic philosopher and founder of the religious sect called the 'Swedenborgians,' was graduated from the university in 1710.

"Fraternities" Called "Nations."

"Wherever seen, Upsala students are distinguished by their white velvet caps. Each of the some 2,000 students are obliged to become members of the student unions known as 'nations.' There are no Greek letter fraternities. Members are chosen by accident of birth, for each nation represents one or more Swedish 'lans' or provinces. The 'nations' have their own houses and conduct their own affairs.

"The university library is, perhaps, the most important in the country, containing more than 350,000 printed volumes and 14,000 valuable manuscripts. The chief treasure is the famous Codex Argenteus, a Fourth century translation of the four gospels into Moeso-Gothic. The work includes 187 leaves of parchment in gold and silver letters on a red ground. There is also a collection of letters of Luther, Linnaeus, Mozart and Goethe.

"Upsala cathedral might be properly called 'Little Notre Dame,' although it is the largest in Sweden. The cathedral is situated in the center of the city, its close adjoining the university campus. Here the graduation exercises of the university are held. In its burial vaults lie the remains of some of Sweden's foremost educators, among whom are King Gustavus Vasa, Linnaeus and Swedenborg. One of Notre Dame's architects, Etienne de Bonneuil, drew the plans of the cathedral, which accounts for its resemblance to the Paris church. Construction began in 1287 and it was 150 years before the building was completed."

DEATH CLAIMS CHARLS JACK CHILlicothe

Cashier Ross County National Bank Died in New York City Tuesday Morning.

Charles C. Jack, cashier of the Ross county National bank, Chillicothe died Tuesday in New York City at the General Memorial hospital which he had entered less than five weeks ago, a sufferer of cancer of the tongue.

Mrs. Jack, who had been constantly at the bedside of her husband, is accompanying the body to Chillicothe. Prominent in Chillicothe's banking and civic life, the sudden passing of Mr. Jack cast a pall over hundreds who appreciated his straight-forwardness as a banker and kindness and geniality as a friend.

He was born at Logan, October 4, 1869, the son of John T. and Annie Woods Jack. His parents moved to Kingston, where, while attending common school, he worked at odd jobs in the old Scioto Valley bank.

He worked for five years in the Kingston bank rising to a clerkship. On April 4, 1889, he moved to Chillicothe where he became identified with the Ross county National bank.

During his 38 years in the Ross county National bank, his pleasant personality and extensive knowledge of banking business, made him thousands of friends, who join with his family in mourning his untimely death.

Mr. Jack's parents were prominent in Kingston. His father was for a score of years justice and township trustee.

Mr. Jack's wife, daughter, Esther, one brother, William, of Fresno, California, and a sister, Laura, of Kingston, survive. He was a member of the Rotary club, Elks, Masons, Country club and Sunset club.

AMUSEMENTS

The surge of war, thunder of big guns, these are the settings for a wonderful human drama in one of the real masterpieces of the screen. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much heralded epic of the marine corps, now playing at the Met theater.

"Tell It To The Marines" is a mighty drama, told amid the great battleships in grim war maneuvers; amid strenuous frays in an Oriental wilderness; amid the confusion and bustle of marine barracks—but, after all, these thrills, bits of comedy, and inspiring spectacles are incidental to the love of a young American and a pretty girl—and the gruff but fatherly love of a grizzled marine sergeant for the boys he scores and belabors like a terrible taskmaster, but not heart is proud of.

It is the story of the soul of the marine corps—the story of the human loves, tragedies, and ideals of those whom the world knows as "First to fight."

And it's glorious entertainment! One roars with laughter at William Haines, as the recruit, in his troubles with the paint—his introduction to the "Admiral's barge"—and his troubles with the sergeant that land him in the brig. One thrills at the mighty spectacle of a whole battle fleet in maneuvers—its guns belching flame—and the grim marines who feed them their explosive food.

It's the story of the soul of America. Lon Chaney, as the grizzled sergeant, has a role the like of which he never played and may never play again—a role he does not act—but literally lives. It may well go down as one of the real Chaney classics.

Eleanor Boardman makes a charming heroine and Carmel Myers a subtle Oriental vampire. Mitchell Lewis as the bandit chief, and Eddie Gribbon as the comic corporal, contribute some gems of acting. George Hill, the director, has created a notable successor to "The Barrier," "Zander the Great" and others of his best known features of the screen.

Bergen Has More Than Proper Share of Rain

When we arrive in Bergen it is raining so hard that all the rains we have ever seen before seem almost a drought in comparison. The people of Bergen are famous for being cheerful. I ask a man how they can be cheerful when it rains so much, and he says: "It might rain worse." And so it might. They have only seventy-two inches of rain in a year in Bergen, whereas in Cherapnaji, India, they average seven times as much.

I ask this Bergen man if it rains all the time in Bergen and he says: "My grandfather told me he remembered a day in August, 1831, when it didn't rain—but his memory was poor." It rains in Bergen on the slightest possible provocation; it doesn't wait for a prediction of "fair and warmer" from the weather man, or for Decoration day, circus day or a Methodist picnic.

Everybody carries an umbrella in Bergen and few take the trouble to put it down. In fact the horses of Bergen are so accustomed to umbrellas that when they see a person without one they are liable to get scared at the unusual sight and run away. Bergen is the rainiest city in Europe.—Pathfinder Magazine.

GYPSY FINDS PEARLS

In Amsterdam is a proud, but honest gypsy who is displaying a new outfit consisting of a caravan and scissors-grinding machine that are pulled by a sleek-looking horse that also has just been acquired. The wife of the Dutch gypsy picked up pearls worth nearly $20,000 in an Amsterdam street, and not realizing their baby to play with. Her husband, who could not read or write, heard of an advertisement for a missing pearl necklace, and immediately reported the find to the insurance company, who gave him, at his request, the new outfit.

Black, Whether of Chiffon or Taffeta Leads the Mode in Chic Evening Gowns

PATRICIA AVERY

CARMEL MYERS

Black this year is the aristocrat of colors for evening wear. The frock may be an informal affair of soft chiffon with only the sleeves omitted to make it appropriate for dinner wear or the more elaborate robe de style so picturesque and charming, but to be truly chic it must be fashioned of black. Every well rounded wardrobe this summer will include at least one sleeveless frock of black chiffon to wear at informal dinners and dances at which simplicity is expected to be the keynote of the mode. Here are two frocks of black which illustrate the style of evening gowns to be worn at fashionable parties this season. At the left is a simple, girlish gown of black the skirt of which is trimmed with three rows of monkey fur. A cape of self material falls softly from shoulder to the waist and a girde, fastened at the front with a jet and rhinestone ornament, encircles the hips. It is worn by Patricia Avery, new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, who is featured in support of Lillian Gish in "Annie Laurie." A new version of the robe de style so successfully initiated the past Winter is shown in the frock of taffeta and net worn by Carmel Myers, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player. Over a slip of black is an overdress of net, with several layers of the net forming tiers on the skirt. Red and silver flowers are posed across the bosom of the skirt.

The Decoration Of Foods

ALL the world agrees that foods which attract the eye tempt the appetite. This is no mere modern idea. It is as old as civilization and is held by every nation. It was on a table decoration that one of the world's greatest sculptors, Antonio Canova, first exercised his genius. He was only twelve years old when he carved a lion, almost two feet high, out of a square of butter, to grace the dinner-table of a patrician family who lived near his home in the village of Possagna, Italy.

The distinctly modern note in food decoration is the combining of colors. The cherry is ubiquitous in desserts, the pimiento in salads. Sprigs of parsley add character to the evenly rounded mound of creamy potato; golden rings of pineapple surround the richly browned turkey; green peas fraternize with the orange-colored squash; sliced canned peaches float in transparent jellies graced with white mounds of sweetened cream; the red of beets blends with the distinctive color of salmon on a bed of pale green lettuce. Indeed, the color schemes are limited in number and pleasing quality only by the inventiveness and taste of the housewife, and — by the variety of canned foods on her kitchen shelves. For, to help her in adding to the attractiveness of her table, the modern housewife has an untold treasure within her reach, namely, over two hundred varieties of canned foods, of every description and color.

GIVE HIM GREAT WELCOME

The great war has been ended for a decade; already in the minds of many its memories have grown dim; a new generation knows of it only as a tale that has been told—a something remote from their lives. But to others—to millions of others—the reek of it, and the tragedy, will not depart. How can they depart? But they now may be regarded with that tranquility which comes as a boon with the passing years.

Hence, when Sergeant Alvin York comes to Cincinnati to lecture on his experiences in the World War, July 3, he should be made very welcome by this citizenship. He was a type of soldier that stands out through the ages. Duty and loyalty to his country swept away his passion for peace, submerged his conscientious objections to human conflict.

And so this Tennessee mountaineer of restricted cultural environment became one of the outstanding heroes of the world's mightiest conflict. He was in the Argonne. Fate touched him with her accolade. From crude mountain boy emerged the berserk champion of epic battle. Single-handed he captured 132 German enemies. He mocked at death and caught victory from the flames and shards of hellish combat. Marshal Foch, leader of the allied armies, declared him to be the outstanding hero of the war. General Pershing indorsed this statement.

Cincinnati should honor Alvin York according to his desert. This is the day of heroes, and he is not the least among them.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Everything Else High; Why Not the Anklet?

Senator Robinson, at one of his famous duck luncheons, was marveling over the high prices that prevail in the night clubs of New York.

"A young man," he said, "visited a night club not long ago. The cover charge was $5. Champagne was $41. The young man shook his head and started for the door without ordering anything.

"What's the matter? a pretty girl at a desk near the door said to him, 'Anything wrong?'"

"What's that round your neck?" said the young man.

"The girl put her hand up to her gold chain.

"That," she said, "is a necklet. Why?"

"Well," said the young man, "everything's so high in this club, I thought it might be an anklet."—Detroit Free Press.

The American Legion

(Copy for This Department supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

GREATER INTEREST IN ADDING MEMBERS

Howard P. Savage, national commander of the American Legion, in announcing recently that the Legion was maintaining the lead in membership over the same date a year ago, declared that greater interest has been shown in membership work than ever before.

Illinois, the national commander's home state and one of the "big three," was the sixth to exceed the total membership of 1926, and is striving to get a total of 70,000 members by the time of the convention to be held in Paris, France, in September. This goal was set as a tribute to Commander Savage. Canada, Florida, Alabama, Indiana and Kentucky, were the other departments that had gone over the top before May 1. Florida and Canada had exceeded the 1927 quotas set for them by national headquarters.

Many contests in membership have been held this year, and several are still being waged. Kansas won in a race with Oklahoma, the contest ending April 30. Kansas won a similar contest last year, and according to agreement, took a Kansas "jayhawk" to the Oklahoma capitol building in which the Oklahoma Legion has state headquarters. The "jayhawk" will remain in the Oklahoma headquarters another year, a constant reminder that Kansas won the contest.

Illinois was leading in the contest of the "big three," New York being second and Pennsylvania third.

The Legion has been aided in its membership work this year by many outside agencies. In numerous instances mayors and governors have proclaimed Legion week and issued statements urging ex-service men to renew their membership, or if they never had joined the organization, to become affiliated with it. Many newspapers have pointed out editorially that the major objective of the Legion this year is community service, and urged a large membership in their communities, stating that the Legion's power to do good is measured by its length and the willingness of ex-service men to work unselfishly for their communities.

Thirty-one states had broadcast official Legion programs by radio before May 1, and most of them inaugurated membership campaigns, or the program was part of an initiation of new members at the close of campaigns.

Post Helps Playground Program in Ohio City

"Public playgrounds for the children of Zanesville," is the slogan adopted by the Zanesville (Ohio) post of The American Legion for its civic activities. A plan for the development and maintenance has been adopted and a survey of the city to determine the number and location of the playgrounds needed has begun.

The work of establishing and maintaining the playgrounds will be done entirely by the Legionnaires, but financial assistance will be sought from other organizations. A committee of representative citizens will be appointed to advise with the Legion committee in charge of the work.

Community Golf Ground Is Maintained by Post

The American Legion Community Golf association of Mason City, Iowa, fathered by Clausen-Worden post of the American Legion as its pet community service activity, is in its third year with a surplus in its treasury. Legion golfers believe the success of the course is assured. During the first year the association had 230 members, nobody being barred and the fees being kept low. New greens were constructed and the course was generally improved. It is the aim of the post to develop the course and eventually turn it over to the city as a municipal links.

To Drill Scout Drum Corps

A boy scout drum and bugle corps patterned after the famous Fort Dodge (Iowa) American Legion drum corps, which won the national championship at the Legion convention in Philadelphia last year, is being organized in Fort Dodge. Members of the Legion corps will train the scout musicians and drill them in the formations that brought the national title to Fort Dodge.

Legion Dads Help

The American Legion Dads, an organization of fathers of World war veterans of Marshalltown, Iowa, has voted to subscribe for stock in the Legion Building association to help the local Legion post to obtain a building of its own. The "Dads" also voted to pay a month's rent on the present Legion hall.

The Health Fund

A health expert has just been talking about "overdrafts on the health fund" so convincingly that one inevitably examines one's habits of life from the doctor's standpoint. Late hours, overeating, lack of exercise—why, doctors' bills ought mostly to be entered in the family account as "recreation," "food" and "travel (either street car or auto)." But there's one thought for the man who never plays. The cost of a breakdown is really a business expense, and presumably deductible on the income-tax return.—Baltimore Sun.

Fool Dress Censor

Sleeveless dresses are banned, even in hot weather, according to a recent order issued by a large insurance company in Melbourne, Australia. To ignore it means dismissal, so the girl clerks are ostensibly obeying. The company explained that "It has no desire to interfere with the liberty of the girls in their choice of dress, but decorum demands that some restriction shall be placed on the more daring modern girl who revels in the comforts of the low-cut sleeveless dress." At work the girls wear arm coverings of various lengths, some being only one inch long, but one fair clerk said: "It is nothing. Some of the girls who have sleeveless dresses bring in false sleeves to work. They stick them on and take them off later."

NUNGESSER AND COLI MAY BE STRANDED

FLARES SEEN SUNDAY NIGHT NEAR ST. GERMAINE, QUEBEC

In Mountains Where Redman Is Only Native—Four Reports That They Saw Indian Signals, Which Is Always Fire—Strengthening Hope That the French Air Heroes Survive.

Charles Nungesser and Francis Coli, missing French aviators, are believed to be stranded in the north of the province of Quebec, a number of miles northwest of St. Germain township, on the north side of the Saguenay river.

A message received at parliament building from forest workers there states that signals of distress were seen in the mountains for a half hour Sunday night and, as they were proper flares, lighted at intervals of three minutes, it is expected that further inquiry will reveal they were lighted by Nungesser and Coli, who left Paris a month ago last Sunday.

The signals were in a northwesterly direction, 70 degrees northwest of St. Germain.

They were seen by four men employed on forest work and, as it is strange to see such flares in this district, they reported the matter to the Provincial government.

On rare occasions previously there have been distress signals from Indians, but they always have been fire signals, not the flares which were seen Sunday night.

Organized parties of forest workers of the Saguenay district, numbering several hundred, are going up to the St. Germain region, it was learned from the parliament building.

No further news have been received from the district, but the government anxious to leave no stone unturned in the possibility of the flares being signals from Nungesser and Coli, have sent wires to all forestry stations instructing the formation of organized parties to go into the St. Germain township and the mountains where the flares were seen.

Despite the fact that Paris reports the airmen left their flares behind them, authorities at Quebec are optimistic, so strange is the sight of flares in this region. The witnesses all are reliable forest officials.

With organized parties on the job the government hopes that it will not be long before the suspense is ended and it is known whether or not the famous French airmen are stranded in the wilds of Quebec. News is expected late Wednesday night or early Wednesday morning.

According to word received Tuesday from Toronto Captain F. V. Robinson, one of the Canadian aviators who has just returned from a search for Nungesser and Coli, declared he had encountered Indians who professed to have heard an airplane about the time the two French aces disappeared.

RECEIVED DEGREE.

Miss F. Marguerite Barnhill, of 715 North Court street, received her bachelor of arts degree when she was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university at the annual commencement exercises held in Delaware Tuesday.

Dr. Edwin G. Conklin, head of the department of biology, Princeton university, delivered the commencement address.

Biblical Appellation

Hexateuch is the name applied to the first six books of the Bible, that is, to the Pentateuch together with the Book of Joshua; the latter dealing as it does with the conquest of Canaan, logically belongs to the same section as the other five. Pentateuch is from two Greek words meaning five and book. Hexateuch means six and book.

Charles Nungesser and Francis Coli started from LeBourget flying field near Paris early Sunday morning, May 8, for New York in an attempt to be the first to make a non-stop flight between Paris and the American metropolis.

They were reported to have been sighted over the English Channel and off the Irish coast, but after several persons had stated that the roar of a plane was heard over points in Newfoundland the morning of May 9, there has been no authentic instance of its having been sighted on this side of the ocean.

The possibility that Nungesser and Coli had flown into Canada was one of the outstanding facts of their disappearance. United States hydrographers estimated that they might have been carried into Labrador, whence even yet it normally would not be time for them to reach communication by telegraph or wireless.

MEETS DEATH THROWN THRU WINDSHIELD

Mrs. Anna C. Sawyers, Mrs. S. B. Orr's Sister, Killed Instantly at Cleveland.

Mrs. S. B. Orr was called to Cleveland by the untimely death of her sister, Mrs. Anna C. Sawyers.

Mrs. Sawyers was riding Monday evening with her daughter and son-in-law when a truck hit their car and Mrs. Sawyer was thrown out onto the paved street. She died shortly afterward.

The car, driven by her son-in-law, Herman Hamilton, was going west on Cedar street and at East 32d street, according to police, the rear wheels tangled with a truck, whirling the sedan and throwing Mrs. Sawyer to the pavement. Her death brought this year's traffic toll in Cleveland to eighty. On June 13 last year only seventy lives had been claimed.

The remains were taken to Pittsburgh for burial.

QUESTION OF THE LIBRARY NOT SETTLED

Delegations Call on Governor Donahey in an Effort to Save Institution.

Representatives of more than a dozen state-wide organizations were to meet with Governor A. V. Donahey, Tuesday afternoon, to protest against the closing of the state library July 1.

Such a resolution was adopted Tuesday noon at the Neil House, Columbus, where Mrs. Josephine L. Peirce, Lima, president of the State Federation of Women's clubs, acted as secretary of the meeting.

Future action of the committee, which has the maintaining of the library as its object, will be governed by the outcome of the conference with the governor, Mrs. Peirce said. Possibility that individual members of the legislature will be importuned to convene in special session if the conference fails of other aid was held out by those attending the conference.

In event this fails, the committee plans, as a last resource, calling for popular subscriptions to support the library. Another plan calls for a special appropriation by the emergency board, which will be visited, it was intimated, if Governor Donahey refuses to listen to the request of the committee, Tuesday afternoon.

Organizations represented at the meeting, Tuesday, which was styled "The State Committee for the Preservation of the State Library," included the League of Women Voters, Farm Women's clubs, Parent-Teachers association, Ohio State Grange, Ohio Farm bureau, State Federation of Labor, Ohio Council of Churches, Ohio Manufacturers association and others.

"Cotton is King" is an expression used by James H. Hammond, in the senate in March, 1858. The figure of speech means that so important is the state of the cotton industry that its condition rules the destiny of men connected with it.

THE GOVERNOR SEEKS A REST INDIAN LAKE

Island Will Be Mecca For Many of Our People For Next Few Months.

People who seek conferences with Governor Donahey during the next few months will probably be obliged to go to his island in Indian Lake, near Bellefontaine, for the gratification of the desire.

The governor, together with Adjutant General Henderson, is the owner of a beautiful island in the lake. A commodious cottage has been erected there and the governor purposes to make it his summer home, except for a day or two a week, when he will come to his office in Columbus.

It is his intention to entertain largely at the island during the summer months and many of the leading men, mostly men prominent in the Democratic party, will be his guests. They will come from all parts of the country in order that conferences in the quiet the island affords can be held.

Out of these conferences will probably be determined the future political course the governor is to pursue. It will be decided whether he is to be a candidate for a fourth term, in his present office; whether he will try for the presidential nomination or seek the nomination for United States senator, as an opponent of Senator Simeon D. Fess. If the opinion of leading Democrats counts for anything the latter office is the one for which he will announce himself. It is known this has the greatest appeal and the place for which he has the most intense longing.

The belief is prevalent that his candidacy for this office is growing and ultimately he will announce his purpose to seek the nomination.

Governor's Island will become a place much in the eyes of the people during the next few months.

Another reason which has induced the chief executive to seek rest during the summer is the intense strain under which he has been working since the commencement of the legislative session. He has been advised that relief is necessary and the island affords the easiest and most practical way this can be secured.

Many of the governor's personal friends will also be entertained and a number of days will be set apart for this.

George U. Marvin.

Everybody denounces the wicked, but many are careful not to mention them by name.

It is tolerant to permit free speech. Is it tolerant to refuse to listen to it if he disapproves?

As nations, we all trust in God, but equally as important is to have God trust in us.

One admirable trait in a young man who is proud of being a sport, is that he's never slouchy.

Won a Pretty Game of Ball At Plain City Sunday Afternoon By a 5 To 2 Score.

We believe that George Kanavel's jinx has been broken at last. George pitched his usual high class ball at Plain City Sunday and supported by gilt edged work in the field and some timely hitting got away with a 5 to 2 verdict over Bob Rapp's fence busters.

Circleville looked more like a ball team Sunday than at any time this season. They were full of pep and fight for the entire nine innings, and staged a batting rally in the fifth inning that put the game on ice.

To tell the best of our story first we will recount the happenings of that fifth frame. After O. Miller, the first man up, had been retired, Altfater came through with a hit and Pitcher Kanavel followed with a screaming liner to center. Stewart followed with another hit and Harvey Miller hit a long fly to left which Jackson took after a hard run. McLaughlin hit a sizzler through Miller at third base, Kindler was given a pass and Terry delivered a nice double; Thompson was retired by Neer unassisted, for the final out, but four runs had been registered.

Outside of that one bad inning Savage pitched a good steady game, the other Circleville run, in the fourth, being the result of an error by Jackson on Kindler's hit and a wild throw by Horning attempting to cut off the fleet footed Terry.

The Plain City runs came in the sixth, the result of Kanavel's only bases on balls. He walked Savage and Rapp in succession and then Neer and Albanese followed with hits, the only time the home team secured more than one hit in an inning. A nice throw by Altfater cut Neer off at the plate on Mike's hit and two flies to right ended the inning.

Taken all in all it was a very pretty contest and deserved a much better crowd than turned out to see it.

On next Sunday the Birds will make their second visit to Reynoldsburg and attempt to even up the score for the three to nothing defeat suffered earlier in the season.

ELECTRICITY AID TO DURATION OF LIFE

Every child born today has the prospect of living five-sixteenths of a year longer than if born in 1911, according to figures recently compiled. Undoubtedly this remarkable result has been brought about by better living conditions, thorough modern science and education. Despite the intense speed of Twentieth century life, with its tension and dangers to the nervous system, life is easier than ever before in the history of the world, and the natural result is longer life.

That electricity has played an important part in bringing this about is unquestioned. It has made industrial working conditions immeasurably better by supplying good light, by making ventilation easier and more effective, by providing a simple form of power. It has revolutionized domestic labor, with its elimination of tedious, nerve-racking, back-breaking tasks through the medium of the modern electric appliance.

Vertical Line Is Feature of Coats

Straight From Shoulders to Hemline the Fashion Followed in Paris.

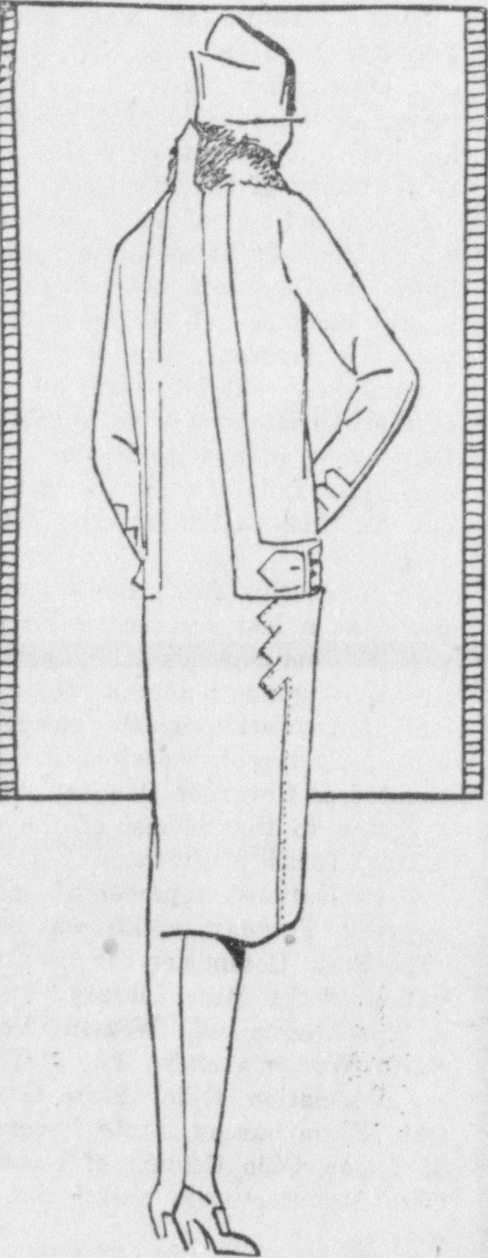

Exploiting a silhouette that is slim, straight and not vitally different from that of last season, the new spring coat is essentially dependent on new details for its differentiations. The straight coat silhouette can scarcely be called new, but whereas last year many models correctly chose the devious path of the flare, this year the chic version must be uninterruptedly vertical—straight from the shoulders to the hemline. There is no more positive rule in the new fashion than that the straightline coat must prevail, asserts a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Perhaps the smartest type of Paris spring coat is the one that is somewhat misleadingly known as collarless. Strictly speaking, there is no collar on these new versions. In its place, however, there are substituted such graceful details as the bow, the draping tie and the scarf which convey the same effect. Generally the sleeves which appear on these collarless models are close fitting, while the smartest spring coat length is seven-eighths, permitting about two or three inches of the frock to peer beneath the hemline.

The seven-eighths type of coat is outstanding in the afternoon mode, and is represented always as part of the ensemble, for its very use is to give an illusory idea that the coat is long, inasmuch as its frill, ruffle or fold at the bottom repeats one on the frock skirt, as Premet, for example, does it. Lanvin makes a striking coat in shantung, piped with black, which flares ever so faintly from the waistline and fastens with a single button. Strangely enough, the manner in which a coat fastens is quite as significant as any other detail and often illustrates a house characteristic. Molyneux, for instance, makes most of his coats full length and does not arrange a fastening, but builds them so that they may be held by the wearer.

Slim Belts Are Used.

Slim belts are used by many houses and Cheruit opens the black silk afternoon coat quite wide with this belt closing, which gives it the appearance of being pushed back to expose the light-colored frock worn with it. Lelong's kinoptic line is exemplified, of course, in coats, and in media, such as georgettes especially, he places radiating tucks around the shoulders and extends them to the rather shallow upstanding collar. Chanel's thickly plaited afternoon coat in printed chiffon, with a frock in the same fabric, is responsive to the new chic. Lace coats are again features for races, and both satin and georgette crepes have taken a tremendous hold in the immediate fashions.

In considering coats do not forget that the short jacket is vastly important in the recent creations, and it is often inclined to usurp the place of the long coat. Usually this brief coat becomes so much a part of the frock that it is difficult to consider it apart. This is illustrated by models from Molyneux which sometimes have the short jacket in the figured print of the frock.

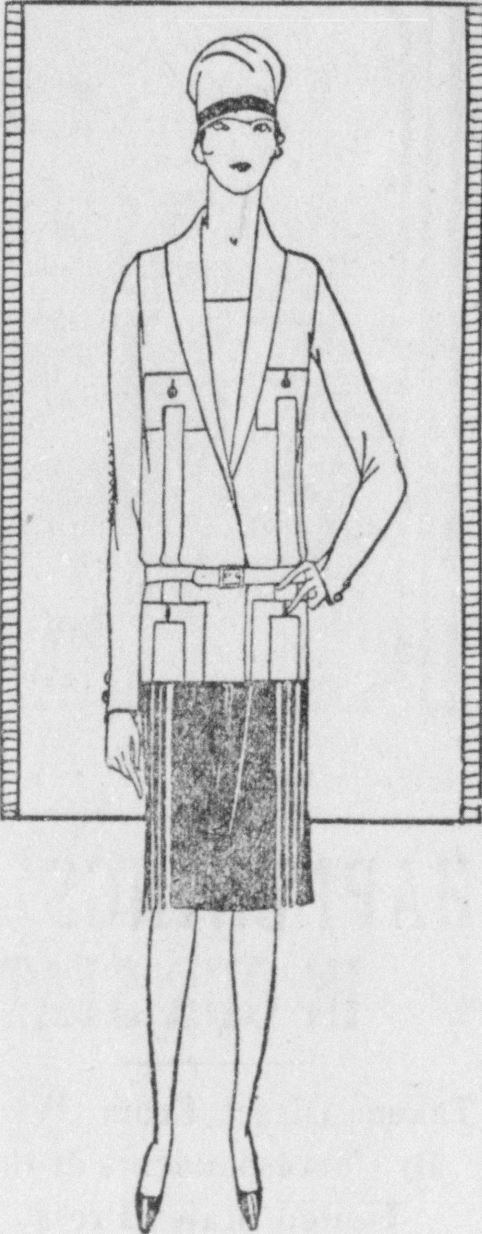

Travel coats on the whole are built on loose, easy lines in a double-faced English material in which the plaid side is the lining, collar and cuffs. Roll collars that fairly ripple are important for this type of coat, while some others have no collar at all and show revers only. The princess silhouette is one of the variations of the travel or morning coat, with the double breast fastened by six buttons, as Chantal does it. Drop shoulders are characteristic of travel coats and express the easy line. Bright leather coats in three-quarter length are developed further for motoring and for sports, while the snakeskin coat, such as Martiat et Armand shows, is important, and the short jacket with close fur collar in decolorized lizard or water snake from Bechoff—both have great interest.

The raincoat is always an important item in the list of summer coats. The majority are made in Bianchini's irantine—which is waterproof—in bright colors and changeable tones, such as those already seen in Paris in changeable red and green and in old blue and bright red. Plaids, which tell so much of the new styles, take a big share in the raincoat mode and follow the double-breasted mode.

Dolman Type for Evening.

Evening coats, on the whole, have not undergone any radical change but remain true to the dolman type. Patou shows his dalmatique lined with fur and Louise Boulanger emphasizes the cape drawn up snugly about the hips. Often she lifts the front of a three-quarters length coat and dips it in the back and makes shortish sleeves—typical are those which are crushed in an electric-blue velvet model.

Summarizing the spring and summer coat situation, these facts stand out: First, it decidedly will not do to essay your last year's coat for this season. Even if your frock, shoes and hat were indubitably au fait a wrap of last spring's vintage would add a jarring and definitely demodee note. Nor can you, unless you be one of those nimble-fingered ladies who laugh at tailoring problems, revamp the year-old wrap so that it may at least faintly resemble the contemporary models. Forget the flare—let your new coat be uninterruptedly straight and have it mold the figure to a moderate degree. The length should be seven-eighths—long enough to reveal a bit of the frock. Your sleeves can be wide or narrow, ornate or simple, but you will be safest in adopting the narrow simple type. Finally, but not least, forego the collar which has been an intrinsic item these recent years. Use instead a scarf or a bow. As for color and fabric, you may wander the realms of the mode fancy free. With this adjuration—for the moment the black silk coat is the contemporary shrine where all Paris is paying homage.

The Tailleur and Ensemble.

As between the fully revived tailleur and the perennial ensemble, the frugal lady should unhesitatingly choose the latter unless she be of an unqualifiedly tailored type. This may strike you as curious reasoning in view of the fact that the tailored suit has just been accorded the hearty welcome of the prodigal, while the ensemble no longer has even the faintest ring of novelty. But we have not too much faith in this new Paris tailleur. Granting that it has a mannish smartness which should endear it to debutante and post-debutante hearts, it lacks the limning characteristic which has become so essential these frank, unblushing days. And viewed from the standpoint of those who are advocating gentler and more girlish dress, it is too severely masculine.

The ensemble, on the other hand, covers a multitude of modes. It may be severely masculine—or it may be gracefully feminine. It may be interpreted in the ancient theme of coat lining matching frock or it may appear in any one of a half dozen new versions. It is smart in the morning and quite as smart in the afternoon. In another form it becomes part of the romantic languor of summer nights. It is inescapably an integral part of the mode, and it will still be an essential factor next year. Which is all that even the thriftiest demotelle could ask.

Coat Materials

Transparent velvet has become a favorite material for outer garments. The coats are in delicate shades of cream, corn, pink and mother of pearl and are usually trimmed with extremely narrow bands of expensive fur.

Goethe's Art Collection

Found in Old Trunk

Berlin.—Goethe's remarkable collection of his own 88 black and white drawings and water colors, which the Goethe museum at Weimar sought throughout Germany for 25 years, is now in the museum as a result of a curious coincidence.

The drawings, largely German and Bohemian landscapes, were known to have been presented by Goethe in 1807 to Princess Caroline of Saxe-Weimar with a note reading: "This is how I whiled away my leisure moments during my travels of recent years."

The princess willed the collection to her intimate friend, Christlane von Reitzenstein. Her descendants evidently thought as little of the drawing as did Germany's greatest poet, who virtually apologized for dabbling in such foolishness.

A short time ago a distant relative of the Von Reitzenstein family submitted the drawings to Prof. Hans Wahl, director of the Goethe museum, who had been conducting the search, and asked if they were genuine. He said he found them in an old trunk of family relics, Doctor Wahl immediately recognized his long-sought prize and purchased it.

That's All

The daughter of the house had taken delight in listening to her father dictate the cryptic words of a telegram over the phone. Later that day at the supper table she was making a detailed explanation of something to her mother. Her father asked her, when she had stopped talking, whether she had anything more to say.

"No," she replied, "that's all there is. Period. Stop."

AIRMEN TO MAP HUDSON STRAIT

Canada Flyers and Aids to Explore Channel as Traffic Route.

Toronto, Ont.—Fifty Canadian aviators and geographers will sail from Halifax early in July on a spectacular arctic, or subarctic, piece of exploration, which may easily surpass in dramatic interest and in scientific discoveries of benefit to mankind any polar flight or expedition.

Their destination is Hudson strait, that great ocean channel 500 miles long by 75 miles wide which connects Hudson bay with the Atlantic ocean. On its inhospitable shores, just on the edge of the land of the midnight sun, they will be isolated for 15 months—all through one long arctic winter and two brief summers.

The object of the expedition is to collect data on the navigation problems of Hudson strait, which, of course, will be the ocean outlet of the Hudson Bay railway now under construction from northern Manitoba to Port Nelson, on the west coast of Hudson bay.

Little Known as Traffic Route.
 Though Hudson strait has been navigated off and on for 300 years, very little is known about its potentialities as a regular traffic route. The impression has prevailed that it is safe for traffic during only two or two and a half months each season. During the rest of the year navigators have found it choked with ice.

While the Hudson Bay railway is being built on the assumption that this new traffic route will have only a brief season, there are enthusiasts who maintain its possibilities are immensely greater. They confidently expect a six-months' season and some go so far as to say that the strait, with modern aids to navigation, can be kept open all the year round.

They say it is unreasonable to suppose that a deep salt-water expanse, with heavy currents 75 miles wide at its narrowest point, remains choked with ice during the periods described, and argue that there is probably a natural open channel through the ice all through the year. Spaces are so immense that ships would easily miss the channel, but that does not prove its nonexistence.

This year's aerial expedition will seek to discover the truth about Hudson strait. When an appropriation of $850,000 was asked for the purpose in parliament a week or two ago one critic objected that the only way to test the navigability of Hudson strait was by actually navigating it with ships. But the minister declared that the airplanes would get more useful information in one season than would a fleet of ships in ten years.

Moreover, wireless stations and camps that will be established by the expedition will probably serve as permanent equipment for the successful navigation of the strait.

The assignment, which has been turned over to the royal Canadian air force, is without parallel in the annals of flying. Map students may think of Hudson bay as lying within the limits of civilization or at least on its edge. It is nothing of the sort. The eastern end of it is 1,000 miles northwest of St. John's, N. F., and the main base of the expedition, lying due north of Ottawa, is as far from civilization as Duluth is from New Orleans.

Plan Three Bases.
 The intention is to establish three bases. One of these will be at Port Burwell on the northern tip of Labrador at the entrance to the strait; the second and main base, general headquarters, will be on the north shore at Lake Harbor on Baffin Land, and the third will be at the entrance to Hudson bay at Nottingham island, 500 miles from the first base.

Those not flyers at each station will include one doctor, one mounted policeman and men from the department of marine and fisheries radio branch and from the royal Canadian corps of signalers. At each depot wireless stations will be established so that intercommunication between them will be maintained at all times.

The station at Lake Harbor will be capable of short wave communication with Ottawa so that the capital will be able to keep in touch with the work and lives of the expedition.

In addition, each airplane will be equipped with wireless for communication, both voice and key, with the stations.

Honey Bees Killed by Poisoned Sprays

Washington—Honey bees are killed by minute quantities of arsenic as used in sprays for fruit trees, and arsenical sprays should not be used while trees and planes are in full bloom, according to Dr. N. E. McDoo and G. S. Demuth of the United States Department of Agriculture. Such sprays should be used only after 90 per cent of the blossoms have fallen from the trees, when the poisons are still efficacious and the majority of bees have abandoned the blossoms.

Aside from the value of the honey crop they produce, bees are of considerable value in transferring pollens, thus effecting fertilization, and should be protected by horticulturists. The conclusions are the result of several years' study recently completed by department scientists because of general agitation on the subject.

DONAHEY URGES VETS TO KEEP UP INSURANCE

Governor, In Radio Talk, Tells Ex-Service Men To Act Quickly With Lapsed Policies.

World war veterans were urged by Governor Donahey to act quickly and reinstate their lapsed war risk insurance before July 2, the dead line for this privilege, last night in a radio address from WAU.

Reinstatement of lapsed insurance is easy to do, he said. Unless the veteran is permanently and totally disabled he may reinstate and convert his wartime insurance into one of the seven forms of insurance issued by the government.

"The American Legion of Ohio, through its many posts, can supply you with all information, the necessary forms and will give you every assistance in filling them out. The Veterans' Bureaus and the Red Cross chapters are also prepared to assist."

The veteran may pay for his insurance monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually, as he prefers.

Trapped

Dr. John Roach Straton, condemning a book that attacks the clergy, said in New York the other day:

"I wish novelists could be improved by their own writings, the same as preachers often are by their own sermons."

"One business man said to another at luncheon:

"Well, did you preach your wife that sermon on economy that you were talking about?"

"Sure did," said the second business man.

"Any result?"

"Yep. I've given up smoking."

NATIONS OF NORTH LEAD IN ATHLETICS

The most athletic countries are those with the lowest average temperature, according to computations made by Dr. Guillermo Hoxmark, of the Argentine weather bureau, on the basis of performances at the last two Olympic games in Antwerp and Paris.

Twenty-six countries were represented and the number of inhabitants of each were divided by the number of points gained, thus giving the number of thousands of inhabitants per point. The countries were then ranged in the resulting order.

When brought into relation with the average annual temperature it appeared that a high average athletic ability and a low average temperature go together.

The figures of the two competitions taken separately and together, give approximately the same result. In each case Norway, Finland and Sweden head the list in the order named, Great Britain stands twelfth; Spain, Czechoslovakia, Japan and Egypt are among those at the bottom of the list.

Higher corn prices, as compared with last year are in prospect for the rest of 1927, predicts C. J. West, state federal crop statistician.

Men who judge livestock at Ohio county fairs have been invited by the State university to spend two days in Columbus, June 22, and 23, attending a postgraduate course on sheep and dairy cattle judging.

Labor incomes of 12 Henry county farmers last year ranged from $794 to $3368, according to records they completed in cooperation with rural economics at the State university. That difference in labor income resulted mainly from differences in management of the farms, the economists said.

Quarries Long in Use

The sandstone or Virginia freestone, used in building the White House, the capitol, the patent office and the Lee mansion at Arlington came from the Aquia Creek quarries, about 40 miles below Washington. These quarries were opened in 1885, and still furnish sandstone for many important buildings.

A. C. WILKES GLORIFIES THE GOLDEN STATE

Tells Chamber of Commerce
 Members of Wonderful
 California Climate.

Arthur C. Wilkes, who recently returned from Pasadena, California, where he and Mrs. Wilkes spent the winter, gave the members of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening a most entertaining talk on the wonderful growth of cities in southern California.

Los Angeles, the City of the Angels which in 1860 had 4,385 inhabitants, today has a population estimated at 1,300,000 the fourth largest city in the Union and outranks Detroit by 100,000. In seventeen years it has doubled its population and has over 50,000 colored people alone. California occupies one-half of the Pacific coast line of the United States and is one thousand miles long. The Golden State has no navigable rivers except the lower Sacramento.

It has spent over sixty millions of dollars to improve its roads and has the finest system of roadways in the Union.

The state is second in per capita ownership of motor cars. It produces all the borax mined in this country; its stores of petroleum is very large, producing about the same as Texas and is exceeded only by Oklahoma.

It is a state of romance and history and was acquired from Mexican political control in 1846. Los Angeles is the largest city in area in the United States as it covers 391.6 square miles of territory. Los Angeles county is larger than the state of Rhode Island.

Californians especially pride themselves on the climate, owing to the fact that the atmosphere is so clear. Motion pictures can be taken 350 days in the year the topography and flora are most varied. In has made Hollywood, a suburb of Los Angeles the center of the motion picture industry. There are 48 studios and 4,400 employees earning $12,542,040 and in 1926 had an output valued at $54,332,060.

The total production of all crops in 1926 was valued at $86,000,000. The manmade harbor of San Pedro is one of the world's great shipping points and it is claimed second only to New York City in tonnage.

SPRAY TIME ARRIVES FOR LEAFHOPPERS

Pests Are Due To Work On
 Potato Plants By the Middle of This Month.

Mid-June to the Ohio potato grower means potato leafhoppers and the only language these insects understand is the language of the power sprayer.

"The main reason for spraying potatoes in Ohio" writes T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the Ohio State university, in a letter to Ohio county agents giving the latest on potato spraying, "is the potato leafhopper, which is responsible for the rolling and dying of the leaf before the plants are mature. This is known as hopperburn.

"Adult leaf-hoppers enter the potato fields early in June in central Ohio counties and by the middle of the month the young or nymphs appear on the undersides of the leaves. They become more numerous as the summer progresses, and have often been known to kill the plants by the middle of August.

"Strong solutions of bordeaux mixture are known to be repellent to the leafhoppers and also have some toxic effects against the young. The nymphs are unable to survive until mature, if forced to feed on leaves kept covered with the mixture. Old hoppers avoid such leaves and are obliged to seek to other food."

Mr. Parks recommends a bardeaux mixture of five pounds of blue vitrol 7 1/2 pounds of hydrated lime and 50 gallons of water, applied to the undersides of the leaves.

Sometimes, in life's prospecting, we discover what we believe to be a rich mine. It may not prove to be a mine of material wealth, but out of it we shall get jewels of character, the gold of experience. Timely Odds

She was a young and pretty girl of a sporting turn of mind. Somehow she heard that a certain horse was to win a certain race, and, deciding to indulge in a little speculation, she went to a "bookie" and put a dollar on for a win, asking at the same time how much she would get if it came off.

"If it starts at 20 to 1 you will get 21 back," said the bookie; "if at 10 to 1, 11 back; if at 5 to 1 you'll get 6 back."

"I see, said the maiden, "and if it starts at one o'clock, how much should I get then?"

TAXATION IS LIVE PROBLEM IN THE STATE

Letters Urge That Budgets of Every Taxing District be Thoroughly Studied.

Letters urging the appointment of committees of farmers to study the budget of every taxing district have been sent to county farm bureaus in every county of Ohio, according to information just received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm bureau. These committees were appointed and served in a number of counties last year, says the report.

Farm organizations were the chief sponsors of the balanced budget law now operating in Ohio, according to L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation. These laws were urged so that every taxpayer might have an opportunity to know how his local tax money is spent and to have some voice in its expenditure he says.

The present budget law requires the fiscal officer of every taxing subdivision to offer its proposed budget for public inspection not less than ten days previous to its adoption and to hold at least one public hearing for its consideration, farm bureau leaders say. The budget must be drawn up before July 15. Every taxpayer, under this system, has the opportunity of looking over proposed government expenditures, and presenting his views or suggestions as to how economies can be made in operation of various government units.

Studies made by Federation workers show that committees of this kind have saved the taxpayers considerable money in the past two years. Local government officials are willing to cooperate with groups of taxpayers who show an intelligent interest in public affairs, these studies show, and impartial committees can often aid in correlating various budget items.

From 75 to 90 per cent of tax money goes for local functions, and it is here that the growing burden of taxation must be watched and expenditures trimmed, say tax experts.

WHEN DICKENS "DID" OHIO.

Fifty-seven years ago last Thursday the death of Charles Dickens occurred, which brings to notice that, lacking one year, as many years as those of his life have passed since his death. For Mr. Dickens died at the comparatively early age of 58.

He looked upon Ohio but once. On the occasion of his American tour in 1842 he passed thru the state from Cincinnati to Sandusky, where he took a lake boat for Buffalo. He passed thru Columbus and spent one day and night here. He was the guest of the Neil House while here, not the Neil House of today, nor yet the structure that was razed to make way for this one, but the old Neil house which burned in November, 1860.

It was before the days of railroads here and Mr. Dickens came from Cincinnati to Columbus by regular stage but there being no regular stage to Sandusky the next day, and being desirous of reaching Sandusky as soon as possible, he left Columbus the next morning by special conveyance.

No reference to his presence in the city is contained in any of the newspapers of the time; no reporter called at his hotel to get his views of the United States of our state, as would be the case now. He did not fail to mention Columbus in his American notes published the next year and from this one may judge that he was favorably impressed here.

He wrote: "We reached Columbus shortly after 7 o'clock and stayed there to refresh that day and night, having excellent apartments in a large unfinished hotel called the Neil House, which were richly fitted with the polished wood of the black walnut and opened on a handsome portico and stone veranda like rooms in some Italian mansion. The town is clean and pretty and of course is going to be much larger. It is the seat of the state legislature of Ohio and lays claim in consequence to some consideration and importance."—J. H. Galbreath.

WHERE PAGAN KINGS ONCE RULED SWEDEN

Old Upsala Again Comes Into Spotlight.

Washington.—"Old Upsala, one-time pagan capital of Sweden, recently came into the spotlight, after centuries of slumber, when a Christian church which is more than 800 years old, was rededicated," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The church stands on the same site formerly occupied by the famous golden pagan temple of Upsala, where worship of the Norse gods, Odin, Thor and Frey, drenched the 'sacred' building with the blood of human sacrifice.

Pagan Rites Practiced.

"Tradition has it that King Domald was slain at Upsala as a sacrifice to the pagan gods to end a famine, after the people had offered other human beings and an ox without success," continues the bulletin.

"King Aun, another early Swedish king, was promised additional years of life by the gods if he would offer up his sons. He lived to sacrifice nine, but was stopped by his subjects before he attempted to slay the tenth and last. The old king is said to have died shortly after he failed to comply with the gods' commands.

"Visitors to Old Upsala today who are not familiar with its history, would not be apprised of its ancient glory. Except for three huge mounds, the traditional tombs of the three gods, and a natural amphitheater where the ancient assemblies of Sweden were held, few suggestions of the old capital remain.

"Ostra Aros, two miles south of the capital on the Fyrisa river, was the royal landing place. Otherwise it was insignificant compared with the royal town. But when the first Christian cathedral was destroyed by fire in the Thirteenth century, the archbishopric was moved to the port city, and shortly afterward the royal household migrated to Stockholm. Old Upsala was soon deserted when stripped of its royal and religious leadership and Ostra Aros even usurped its name. The old capital later became known as Gamla Upsala.

"Modern Upsala, now a city of nearly 30,000 inhabitants, is about forty miles north of Stockholm with which it is connected by both water and rail transportation. Its principal industry is education, for Upsala university is the largest state educational institution in Sweden. The university was founded in 1477.

"Crowning the highest point in the city is the Upsala castle, founded by King Gustavus Vasa 400 years ago. It was the scene of Queen Christina's abdication.

"The castle windows afford a splendid view of the 'college town.' The Fyrisa, crossed by eight bridges, quietly flows southward toward Lake Malaren. The city is spread out on both banks. The east bank, save for a few houses, and streets that are laid out in checkerboard fashion, is the site of numerous university buildings, campuses and gardens. One of the gardens was laid out by Linnaeus, the founder of modern botany, who became a professor at Upsala in 1741. Emanuel Swedenborg, mystic philosopher and founder of the religious sect called the 'Swedenborgians,' was graduated from the university in 1710.

"Fraternalities" Called "Nations." "Wherever seen, Upsala students are distinguished by their white velvet caps. Each of the some 2,000 students are obliged to become members of the student unions known as 'nations.' There are no Greek letter fraternities. Members are chosen by accident of birth, for each nation represents one or more Swedish 'lands,' or provinces. The 'nations' have their own houses and conduct their own affairs.

"The university library is, perhaps, the most important in the country, containing more than 350,000 printed volumes and 14,000 valuable manuscripts. The chief treasure is the famous Codex Argenteus, a Fourth century translation of the four gospels into Moeso-Gothic. The work includes 187 leaves of parchment in gold and silver letters on a red ground. There is also a collection of letters of Luther, Linnaeus, Mozart and Goethe.

"Upsala cathedral might be properly called 'Little Notre Dame,' although it is the largest in Sweden. The cathedral is situated in the center of the city, its close adjoining the university campus. Here the graduation exercises of the university are held. In its burial vaults lie the remains of some of Sweden's foremost educators, among whom are King Gustavus Vasa, Linnaeus and Swedenborg. One of Notre Dame's architects, Etienne de Bonneuil, drew the plans of the cathedral, which accounts for its resemblance to the Paris church. Construction began in 1287 and it was 150 years before the building was completed."

DEATH CLAIMS CHARLS JACK CHILlicothe

Cashier Ross County National Bank Died in New York City Tuesday Morning.

Charles C. Jack, cashier of the Ross county National bank, Chillicothe died Tuesday in New York City at the General Memorial hospital which he had entered less than five weeks ago, a sufferer of cancer of the tongue.

Mrs. Jack, who had been constantly at the bedside of her husband, is accompanying the body to Chillicothe.

Prominent in Chillicothe's banking and civic life, the sudden passing of Mr. Jack cast a pall over hundreds who appreciated his straight-forwardness as a banker and kindness and geniality as a friend.

He was born at Logan, October 4, 1869, the son of John T. and Annie Woods Jack. His parents moved to Kingston, where, while attending common school, he worked at odd jobs in the old Scioto Valley bank.

He worked for five years in the Kingston bank rising to a clerkship. On April 4, 1889, he moved to Chillicothe where he became identified with the Ross county National bank.

During his 38 years in the Ross county National bank, his pleasant personality and extensive knowledge of banking business, made him thousands of friends, who join with his family in mourning his untimely death.

Mr. Jack's parents were prominent in Kingston. His father was for a score of years justice and township trustee.

Mr. Jack's wife, daughter, Esther, one brother, William, of Fresno, California, and a sister, Laura, of Kingston, survive. He was a member of the Rotary club, Elks, Masons, Country club and Sunset club.

BRUNNER'S.

AMUSEMENTS

The surge of war, thunder of big guns, these are the settings for a wonderful human drama in one of the real masterpieces of the screen. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much heralded epic of the marine corps, now playing at the Met theater.

"Tell It To The Marines" is a mighty drama, told amid the great battleships in grim war maneuvers; amid strenuous frays in an Oriental wilderness; amid the confusion and bustle of marine barracks—but, after all, these thrills, bits of comedy, and inspiring spectacles are incidental to the love of a young American and a pretty girl—and the gruff but fatherly love of a grizzled marine sergeant for the boys he scores and belabors like a terrible taskmaster, but act heart is proud of it.

It is the story of the soul of the marine corps—the story of the human loves, tragedies, and ideals of those whom the world knows as "First to fight."

And it's glorious entertainment! One roars with laughter at William Haines, as the recruit, in his troubles with the paint—his introduction to the "Admiral's barge"—and his troubles with the sergeant that land him in the brig. One thrills at the mighty spectacle of a whole battle fleet in maneuvers—its guns belching flame—and the grim marines who feed them their explosive food.

It's the story of the soul of America. Lon Chaney, as the grizzled sergeant, has a role the like of which he never played and may never play again—a role he does not act—but literally lives. It may well go down as one of the real Chaney classics. Eleanor Boardman makes a charming heroine and Carmel Myers a subtle Oriental vampire. Mitchell Lewis as the bandit chief, and Eddie Gribbon as the comic corporal, contribute some gems of acting. George Hill, the director, has created a notable successor to "The Barrier," "Zander the Great" and others of his best known features of the screen.

Bergen Has More Than Proper Share of Rain

When we arrive in Bergen it is raining so hard that all the rains we have ever seen before seem almost a drought in comparison. The people of Bergen are famous for being cheerful. I ask a man how they can be cheerful when it rains so much, and he says: "It might rain worse." And so it might. They have only seventy-two inches of rain in a year in Bergen, whereas in Cherapunji, India, they average seven times as much.

I ask this Bergen man if it rains all the time in Bergen and he says: "My grandfather told me he remembered a day in August, 1831, when it didn't rain—but his memory was poor." It rains in Bergen on the slightest possible provocation; it doesn't wait for a prediction of "fair and warmer" from the weather man, or for Decoration day, circus day or a Methodist picnic.

Everybody carries an umbrella in Bergen and few take the trouble to put it down. In fact the horses of Bergen are so accustomed to umbrellas that when they see a person without one they are liable to get scared at the unusual sight and run away. Bergen is the rainiest city in Europe.—Pathfinder Magazine.

GYPSY FINDS PEARLS

In Amsterdam is a proud, but honest gypsy who is displaying a new outfit consisting of a caravan and scissors-grinding machine that are pulled by a sleek-looking horse that also has just been acquired. The wife of the Dutch gypsy picked up pearls worth nearly $20,000 in an Amsterdam street, and not realizing their baby to play with. Her husband, who could not read or write, heard of an advertisement for a missing pearl necklace, and immediately reported the find to the insurance company, who gave him, at his request, the new outfit.

Black, Whether of Chiffon or Taffeta Leads the Mode in Chic Evening Gowns

PATRICIA AVERY

CARMEL MYERS

Black this year is the aristocrat of colors for evening wear. The frock may be an informal affair of soft chiffon with only the sleeves omitted to make it appropriate for dinner wear or the more elaborate robe de style so picturesque and charming, but to be truly chic it must be fashioned of black. Every well rounded wardrobe this summer will include at least one sleeveless frock of black chiffon to wear at informal dinners and dances at which simplicity is expected to be the keynote of the mode. Here are two frocks of black which illustrate the style of evening gowns to be worn at fashionable resorts this season. At the left is a simple, girlish gown of black the skirt of which is trimmed with three rows of monkey fur. A cape of self material falls softly from shoulder to the waist and a girde, fastened at the front with a jet and rhinestone ornament, encircles the hips. It is worn by Patricia Avery, new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, who is featured in support of Lillian Gish in "Annie Laurie."

A new version of the robe de style so successfully initiated the past Winter is shown in the frock of taffeta and net worn by Carmel Myers, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player. Over a slip of black is an overdress of net, with several layers of the net forming tiers on the skirt. Red and silver flowers are posed across the bosom of the skirt.

The Decoration Of Foods

ALL the world agrees that foods which attract the eye tempt the appetite. This is no mere modern idea. It is as old as civilization and is held by every nation. It was on a table decoration that one of the world's greatest sculptors, Antonio Canova, first exercised his genius. He was only twelve years old when he carved a lion, almost two feet high, out of a square of butter, to grace the dinner-table of a patrician family who lived near his home in the village of Posagna, Italy.

The distinctly modern note in food decoration is the combining of colors. The cherry is ubiquitous in desserts, the pimiento in salads. Sprigs of parsley add character to the evenly rounded mound of creamy potato; golden rings of pineapple surround the richly browned turkey; green peas fraternize with the orange-colored squash; sliced canned peaches float in transparent jellies graced with white mounds of sweetened cream; the red of beets blends with the distinctive color of salmon on a bed of pale green lettuce. Indeed, the color schemes are limited in number and pleasing quality only by the inventiveness and taste of the housewife, and — by the variety of canned foods on her kitchen shelves. For, to help her in adding to the attractiveness of her table, the modern housewife has an untold treasure within her reach, namely, over two hundred varieties of canned foods, of every description and color.

GIVE HIM GREAT WELCOME

The great war has been ended for a decade; already in the minds of many its memories have grown dim; a new generation knows of it only as a tale that has been told—a something remote from their lives. But to others—to millions of others—the reek of it, and the tragedy, will not depart. How can they depart? But they now may be regarded with that tranquility which comes as a boon with the passing years.

Hence, when Sergeant Alvin York comes to Cincinnati to lecture on his experiences in the World War, July 8, he should be made very welcome by this citizenship. He was a type of soldier that stands out through the ages. Duty and loyalty to his country swept away his passion for peace, submerged his conscientious objections to human conflict.

And so this Tennessee mountaineer of restricted cultural environment became one of the outstanding heroes of the world's mightiest conflict. He was in the Argonne. Fate touched him with her accolade. From crude mountain boy emerged the berserk champion of epic battle. Single-handed he captured 132 German enemies. He mocked at death and caught victory from the flames and shards of hellish combat. Marshal Foch, leader of the allied armies, declared him to be the outstanding hero of the war. General Pershing indorsed this statement.

Cincinnati should honor Alvin York according to his desert. This is the day of heroes, and he is not the least among them.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Everything Else High; Why Not the Anklet?

Senator Robinson, at one of his famous duck luncheons, was marveling over the high prices that prevail in the night clubs of New York.

"A young man," he said, "visited a night club not long ago. The cover charge was $5. Champagne was $41. The young man shook his head and started for the door without ordering anything."

"What's the matter?" a pretty girl at a desk near the door said to him, "Anything wrong?"

"What's that round your neck?" said the young man.

"The girl put her hand up to her gold chain."

"That," she said, "is a necklet. Why?"

"Well," said the young man, "everything's so high in this club, I thought it might be an anklet."—Detroit Free Press.

The American Legion

(Copy for This Department supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

GREATER INTEREST IN ADDING MEMBERS

Howard P. Savage, national commander of the American Legion, in announcing recently that the Legion was maintaining the lead in membership over the same date a year ago, declared that greater interest has been shown in membership work than ever before.

Illinois, the national commander's home state and one of the "big three," was the sixth to exceed the total membership of 1926, and is striving to get a total of 70,000 members by the time of the convention to be held in Paris, France, in September. This goal was set as a tribute to Commander Savage. Canada, Florida, Alabama, Indiana and Kentucky, were the other departments that had gone over the top before May 1. Florida and Canada had exceeded the 1927 quotas set for them by national headquarters.

Many contests in membership have been held this year, and several are still being waged. Kansas won in a race with Oklahoma, the contest ending April 30. Kansas won a similar contest last year, and according to agreement, took a Kansas "Jayhawk" to the Oklahoma capitol building in which the Oklahoma Legion has state headquarters. The "Jayhawk" will remain in the Oklahoma headquarters another year, a constant reminder that Kansas won the contest.

Illinois was leading in the contest of the "big three," New York being second and Pennsylvania third.

The Legion has been aided in its membership work this year by many outside agencies. In numerous instances mayors and governors have proclaimed Legion week and issued statements urging ex-service men to renew their membership, or if they never had joined the organization, to become affiliated with it. Many newspapers have pointed out editorially that the major objective of the Legion this year is community service, and urged a large membership in their communities, stating that the Legion's power to do good is measured by its length and the willingness of ex-service men to work unselfishly for their communities.

Thirty-one states had broadcast official Legion programs by radio before May 1, and most of them inaugurated membership campaigns, or the program was part of an initiation of new members at the close of campaigns.

Post Helps Playground Program in Ohio City

"Public playgrounds for the children of Zanesville," is the slogan adopted by the Zanesville (Ohio) post of The American Legion for its civic activities. A plan for the development and maintenance has been adopted and a survey of the city to determine the number and location of the playgrounds needed has begun.

The work of establishing and maintaining the playgrounds will be done entirely by the Legionnaires, but financial assistance will be sought from other organizations. A committee of representative citizens will be appointed to advise with the Legion committee in charge of the work.

Community Golf Ground Is Maintained by Post

The American Legion Community Golf association of Mason City, Iowa, fathered by Clausen-Worden post of the American Legion as its pet community service activity, is in its third year with a surplus in its treasury. Legion golfers believe the success of the course is assured. During the first year the association had 239 members, nobody being barred and the fees being kept low. New greens were constructed and the course was generally improved. It is the aim of the post to develop the course and eventually turn it over to the city as a municipal links.

To Drill Scout Drum Corps

A boy scout drum and bugle corps patterned after the famous Fort Dodge (Iowa) American Legion drum corps, which won the national championship at the Legion convention in Philadelphia last year, is being organized in Fort Dodge. Members of the Legion corps will train the scout musicians and drill them in the formations that brought the national title to Fort Dodge.

Legion Dads Help

The American Legion Dads, an organization of fathers of World war veterans of Marshalltown, Iowa, has voted to subscribe for stock in the Legion Building association to help the local Legion post to obtain a building of its own. The "Dads" also voted to pay a month's rent on the present Legion hall.

The Health Fund

A health expert has just been talking about "overdrafts on the health fund" so convincingly that one inevitably examines one's habits of life from the doctor's standpoint. Late hours, overeating, lack of exercise—why, doctors' bills ought mostly to be entered in the family account as "recreation," "food" and "travel (either street car or auto)." But there's one thought for the man who never plays. The cost of a breakdown is really a business expense, and presumably deductible on the income-tax return. —Baltimore Sun.

Fool Dress Censor

Sleeveless dresses are banned, even in hot weather, according to a recent order issued by a large insurance company in Melbourne, Australia. To ignore it means dismissal, so the girl clerks are ostensibly obeying. The company explained that "it has no desire to interfere with the liberty of the girls in their choice of dress, but decorum demands that some restriction shall be placed on the more daring modern girl who revels in the comforts of the low-cut sleeveless dress." At work the girls wear arm coverings of various lengths, some being only one inch long, but one fair clerk said: "It is nothing. Some of the girls who have sleeveless dresses bring in false sleeves to work. They stick them on and take them off later."

AIRMEN TO MAP HUDSON STRAIT

Canada Flyers and Aids to Explore Channel as Traffic Route.

Toronto, Ont.—Fifty Canadian aviators and geographers will sail from Halifax early in July on a spectacular arctic, or subarctic, piece of exploration, which may easily surpass in dramatic interest and in scientific discoveries of benefit to mankind any polar flight or expedition.

Their destination is Hudson strait, that great ocean channel 500 miles long by 75 miles wide which connects Hudson bay with the Atlantic ocean. On its inhospitable shores, just on the edge of the land of the midnight sun, they will be isolated for 15 months—all through one long arctic winter and two brief summers.

The object of the expedition is to collect data on the navigation problems of Hudson strait, which, of course, will be the ocean outlet of the Hudson Bay railway now under construction from northern Manitoba to Port Nelson, on the west coast of Hudson bay.

Little Known as Traffic Route.
Though Hudson strait has been navigated off and on for 300 years, very little is known about its potentialities as a regular traffic route. The impression has prevailed that it is safe for traffic during only two or two and a half months each season. During the rest of the year navigators have found it choked with ice.

While the Hudson Bay railway is being built on the assumption that this new traffic route will have only a brief season, there are enthusiasts who maintain its possibilities are immensely greater. They confidently expect a six-months' season and some go so far as to say that the strait, with modern aids to navigation, can be kept open all the year round.

They say it is unreasonable to suppose that a deep salt-water expanse, with heavy currents 75 miles wide at its narrowest point, remains choked with ice during the periods described, and argue that there is probably a natural open channel through the ice all through the year. Spaces are so immense that ships would easily miss the channel, but that does not prove its nonexistence.

This year's aerial expedition will seek to discover the truth about Hudson strait. When an appropriation of $850,000 was asked for the purpose in parliament a week or two ago one critic objected that the only way to test the navigability of Hudson strait was by actually navigating it with ships. But the minister declared that the airplanes would get more useful information in one season than would a fleet of ships in ten years.

Moreover, wireless stations and camps that will be established by the expedition will probably serve as permanent equipment for the successful navigation of the strait.

The assignment, which has been turned over to the royal Canadian air force, is without parallel in the annals of flying. Map students may think of Hudson bay as lying within the limits of civilization or at least on its edge. It is nothing of the sort. The eastern end of it is 1,000 miles northwest of St. John's, N. F., and the main base of the expedition, lying due north of Ottawa, is as far from civilization as Duluth is from New Orleans.

Plan Three Bases.
The intention is to establish three bases. One of these will be at Port Burwell on the northern tip of Labrador at the entrance to the strait; the second and main base, general headquarters, will be on the north shore at Lake Harbor on Baffin Land, and the third will be at the entrance to Hudson bay at Nottingham island, 500 miles from the first base.

Those not flyers at each station will include one doctor, one mounted policeman and men from the department of marine and fisheries radio branch and from the royal Canadian corps of signalers. At each depot wireless stations will be established so that intercommunication between them will be maintained at all times.

The station at Lake Harbor will be capable of short wave communication with Ottawa so that the capital will be able to keep in touch with the work and lives of the expedition.

In addition, each airplane will be equipped with wireless for communication, both voice and key, with the stations.

Honey Bees Killed by Poisoned Sprays
Washington—Honey bees are killed by minute quantities of arsenic as used in sprays for fruit trees, and arsenical sprays should not be used while trees and planes are in full bloom, according to Dr. N. E. McIndoo and G. S. Demuth of the United States Department of Agriculture. Such sprays should be used only after 90 per cent of the blossoms have fallen from the trees, when the poisons are still efficacious and the majority of bees have abandoned the blossoms.

Aside from the value of the honey crop they produce, bees are of considerable value in transferring pollens, thus effecting fertilization, and should be protected by horticulturists. The conclusions are the result of several years' study recently completed by department scientists because of general agitation on the subject.

DONAHEY URGES VETS TO KEEP UP INSURANCE

Governor, in Radio Talk, Tells Ex-Service Men To Act Quickly With Lapsed Policies.

World war veterans were urged by Governor Donahey to act quickly and reinstate their lapsed war risk insurance before July 2, the dead line for this privilege, last night in a radio address from WAIU.

Reinstatement of lapsed insurance is easy to do, he said. Unless the veteran is permanently and totally disabled he may reinstate and convert his wartime insurance into one of the seven forms of insurance issued by the government.

"The American Legion of Ohio, through its many posts, can supply you with all information, the necessary forms and will give you every assistance in filling them out. The Veterans' Bureaus and the Red Cross chapters are also prepared to assist."

The veteran may pay for his insurance monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually, as he prefers.

"I wish novelists could be improved by their own writings, the same as preachers often are by their own sermons."
"One business man said to another at luncheon:
"Well, did you preach your wife that sermon on economy that you were talking about?"
"Sure did," said the second business man.
"Any result?"
"Yep. I've given up smoking."

NATIONS OF NORTH LEAD IN ATHLETICS

The most athletic countries are those with the lowest average temperature, according to computations made by Dr. Guillermo Hoxmark, of the Argentine weather bureau, on the basis of performances at the last two Olympic games in Antwerp and Paris.

Twenty-six countries were represented and the number of inhabitants of each were divided by the number of points gained, thus giving the number of thousands of inhabitants per point. The countries were then ranged in the resulting order.

When brought into relation with the average annual temperature it appeared that a high average athletic ability and a low average temperature go together.

The figures of the two competitions taken separately and together, give approximately the same result. In each case Norway, Finland and Sweden head the list in the order named, Great Britain stands twelfth; Spain, Czechoslovakia, Japan and Egypt are among those at the bottom of the list.

A debate that has been waged for generations among farmers is summed up by federal department of agriculture agronomists with the words: Kill the weeds and you have accomplished the chief end of corn cultivation.

Says Sam: "Put your best foot forward" is sound advice, provided you know which foot is best.

Higher corn prices, as compared with last year are in prospect for the rest of 1927, predicts C. J. West, state federal crop statistician.

Men who judge livestock at Ohio county fairs have been invited by the State university to spend two days in Columbus, June 22, and 23, attending a postgraduate course on sheep and dairy cattle judging.

Labor incomes of 12 Henry county farmers last year ranged from $794 to $3368, according to records they completed in cooperation with rural economics at the State university. That difference in labor income resulted mainly from differences in management of the farms, the economists said.

A. C. WILKES
GLORIFIES THE GOLDEN STATE

Tells Chamber of Commerce Members of Wonderful California Climate.

Arthur C. Wilkes, who recently returned from Pasadena, California, where he and Mrs. Wilkes spent the winter, gave the members of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening a most entertaining talk on the wonderful growth of cities in southern California.

Los Angeles, the City of the Angels which in 1860 had 4,385 inhabitants, today has a population estimated at 1,300,000 the fourth largest city in the Union and outranks Detroit by 100,000. In seventeen years it has doubled its population and has over 50,000 colored people alone. California occupies one-half of the Pacific coast line of the United States and is one thousand miles long. The Golden State has no navigable rivers except the lower Sacramento.

It has spent over sixty millions of dollars to improve its roads and has the finest system of roadways in the Union.

The state is second in per capita ownership of motor cars. It produces all the borax mined in this country; its stores of petroleum is very large, producing about the same as Texas and is exceeded only by Oklahoma.

It is a state of romance and history and was acquired from Mexican political control in 1846. Los Angeles is the largest city in area in the United States as it covers 391.6 square miles of territory. Los Angeles county is larger than the state of Rhode Island.

Californians especially pride themselves on the climate, owing to the fact that the atmosphere is so clear. Motion pictures can be taken 350 days in the year the topography and flora are most varied. In has made Hollywood, a suburb of Los Angeles the center of the motion picture industry. There are 48 studios and 4,400 employees earning $12,542,040 and in 1926 had an output valued at $54,332,060.

The total production of all crops in 1926 was valued at $86,000,000. The manmade harbor of San Pedro is one of the world's great shipping points and it is claimed second only to New York City in tonnage.

SPRAY TIME
ARRIVES FOR LEAFHOPPERS

Pests Are Due To Work On Potato Plants By the Middle of This Month.

Mid-June to the Ohio potato grower means potato leafhoppers and the only language these insects understand is the language of the power sprayer.

"The main reason for spraying potatoes in Ohio" writes T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at the Ohio State university, in a letter to Ohio county agents giving the latest on potato spraying, "is the potato leafhopper, which is responsible for the rolling and dying of the leaf before the plants are mature. This is known as hopperburn.

"Adult leaf-hoppers enter the potato fields early in June in central Ohio counties and by the middle of the month the young or nymphs appear on the undersides of the leaves. They become more numerous as the summer progresses, and have often been known to kill the plants by the middle of August.

"Strong solutions of bordeaux mixture are known to be repellent to the leafhoppers and also have some toxic effects against the young. The nymphs are unable to survive until mature, if forced to feed on leaves kept covered with the mixture. Old hoppers avoid such leaves and are obliged to seek to other food."

Mr. Parks recommends a bordeaux mixture of five pounds of blue vitrol 7½ pounds of hydrated lime and 50 gallons of water, applied to the undersides of the leaves.

Good Work Brings Results

Sometimes, in life's prospecting, we discover what we believe to be a rich mine. It may not prove to be a mine of material wealth, but out of it we shall get jewels of character, the gold of experience. There is no real loss in life lived to the utmost, and good work is a philosopher's stone which transmutes even the base metals of trial and seeming failure into pure gold.—Exchange.

Topographic Achievements

The topographic engineers of the army surveyed many important roads, among them being the routes for the Pacific railroad, which was done under the direction of Jefferson Davis while he was secretary of war. This corps disappeared in 1863.
